Dedication

Whether we wish to admit it or not, we are the future of our ancestors, as our descendants are our future. We owe our descendants our dreams and bequeath to them the legacy of our collective accomplishments – nothing more and nothing less. To our descendants, we charge you with the honoring of your heritage. Your ancestors were hardy folk, god-fearing and plain spoken, and who recognized that nothing was due them except that which they themselves earned. They were not ashamed to profess their belief in God, their country and the American ideal. Of course, there were a few rascallions in our collective history, but neither more nor less than in any other family.

We too easily forget what it took to forge a life in a new world, one rife with peril and with little at hand but a steadfast determination to not only survive but to thrive. Our ancestors bequeathed us with their genes, aspirations and talents. It is therefore fitting that the Blandford Series of Yarbrough Family Records be dedicated to them for making it possible for us to be who we are.

To paraphrase Robert Kincaid¹, “The dreams they had were good ones. They didn’t all come true, but they were worth having, all the same.”

Acknowledgement

The Yarbrough Association is greatly indebted to the vision and efforts of Cathy Y. Walker and William A. (Bill) Yarbrough, the late president and vice-president of the YNGHA, respectively, for beginning the project to digitize the 150+ volumes of records accumulated over the life of the Association. Fulfilment of the project was through the efforts of a number of officers and members, including Bill’s son Mark, Rachel and Don Yarbrough, Hal Yarbrough, Jan and Jim Yarbrough, Ann and Al Bush, Elaine and Lyle Wolf, Joan Y. Singlaub, and Joanne and Bill Augspurger.

It was my privilege to be a part of this dedicated team.

Preface

These records are the legacy of our Yarbrough family researchers, to whom much is owed. The known family researchers include Jean Baker, Ann Y. Broadbent, Mary Y. Daniel, Frances (Rea) Donohue, Betty Humrighouse, Pauline Gray, Evelyn Goble, Nelle Morris Jenkins, Ophelia Kessler, Frances Lockwood, Karen Mazock Renee Smelley, Dorothy Svec, Jeanette Wilson, Cleveland “Cy” Yarborough, Edna Yarbrough, George A. Yarbrough, and Robert Price Yarbrough.

The originals of these volumes are being kept for the benefit of future generations by the Williamson County Library, Franklin, Tennessee.

No claims of accuracy or authentication of the material herein are made or may be assumed. Many of these records have been superseded by subsequent research. Hence, there are records which are erroneous and unreliable; it would have been a Herculean task to attempt to correct all of them. Fortunately, there are only a few critical genealogical facts that are involved, and which are correctly stated here:

- Richard (the Immigrant) Yarborough was never married to Frances Proctor;
- Ambrose Yarbrough did not immigrate from Yorkshire; he is now believed to be a descendant of Richard the Immigrant;
- There are so far only two proven sons of Old Richard – John and Richard II;
- There is so far no evidence proving Joshua Yarborough I to be a descendant of Old Richard.
- The “Old Country” referred to in old documents and letters is the Colony of Virginia, not England or the Old World.
- There were not seven brothers who immigrated from “the old country”; in fact, it now appears there were three brothers and four sons of the brothers. Which were the fathers and which were the sons are so far unknown.

In spite of these inaccuracies, these records comprise much of our history and some of our accomplishments. There are pages whose print quality is so poor that word recognition was not possible. In spite of that, at least partial capability for searching these volumes is provided, as well as an index to each volume. Nonetheless, the viewer is cautioned to perform his/her own due diligence in connection with any use of this material.

The various spellings of the Yarbrough surname have never been applied consistently, even within a given family. To the extent possible, the names in the index reflect the names used on the source pages; where it wasn't clear as to which might be the proper spelling, the spelling used is “Yarbrough”.

The material contained herein is subject to the copyright laws of the United States. Material may be freely used by Yarbrough family researchers so long as proper attribution to the Yarbrough National Genealogical & Historical Association, Inc. is given. This material, in whole or in part, may not be used for any other purposes without the express written permission of the Yarbrough National Genealogical & Historical Association.

We welcome the submission of any Yarbrough family information that can be added to our growing data base. More information about the extended Yarbrough families can be found at our website, <http://www.yarbroughfamily.org>. DECLARATION

IN ORDER TO OBTAIN THE BENEFITS OF THE ACT OF CONGRESS PASSED
7 JUNE 1832

STATE OF TENNESSEE
TIPTON COUNTY

ON THIS DAY OF 4th OF SEPTEMBER in the year of our Lord 1833 personally appeared before Open Court before the Court of Pleas and Quarters Session of Tipton County aforesaid now sitting Henry Yarbrough, Sr. a resident of said County aged about seventy one or two years, who being duly sworn according to law doth on his oath make the following declaration in order to obtain the benefits of the Act of Congress passed June 7th, 1832.

That he entered the service of the United States under the following named officer and served as herein stated. "Under Capt. Brittain Fuller I volunteered and it was about the year 1779 or 1780 (which precisely I cannot recollect but I believe I was about 18 or 19 years of age) who commanded a horse company. I furnished my own horse and equipage and in the character of a private soldier I volunteered only for three but served six months. We were marched by Capt. Fuller from Randolph County, No. Carolina where I then lived with my father Zachariah Yarbrow and where I volunteered, to Six Mile Creek in the State of South Carolina. When we arrived there Capt. Fuller resigned his command and Capt. Jacob Williams of Dan River took it, under whom we continued until he left us, which was about two months. Under Capt. Williams we were disciplined and performed all the service required of us, such as scouting and collecting provisions, while we were there stationed and employed, it was then Col. Rugilly the Conspicuous Tory of the Brick House was taken by our forces and with him, about two hundred prisoners, who at once surrendered upon exhibition of pine logs painted and made to resemble cannons. They were all marched into the camp and subsequently marched northward under the command of Capt. Williams. After Williams left us with the prisoners, we passed under the command of a captain of horse whose name I cannot now recollect, but he was attached to Gen Morgan's command. There was also Col. Washington, Genl. Greene, Linnborn and several others. Some of whom perhaps had no command at the time. I believe Genl. Greene was our Commander-in Chief. I was actively employed the whole six months in partisan war against the Tories, having frequent skirmishes with them and sometimes some pretty active and sharp fighting. I was then young and being fired with atrocities of the Tories. I bore hard upon them, sparing the women and children. Capt. Knights and Lieutenant Elijah Williams commanded on these occasions.

We were marched from the Six Mile Creek back to Charlettesville, No. Carolina and there discharged by Genl. Morgan, who gave me a written discharge. I continued nevertheless for several years to carry on the partisan war against the Tories, who were so enraged by me that I could not stay at home in safety and who did me great damage. I could relate much of the occurrences of the Partisan War in the back parts of North Carolina and South Carolina in which I was previously engaged. Judge Murphy of No. Carolina, when about to write a history of that State sent a man to me requesting a detailed account of this war believing that I could furnish a more connected history of those events than any other man he knows. I however was upon the eve of moving to this county, and answered I have no time to devote to such matters. I was born in year of 1761 or 2 in what was then called Butte but now Franklin County, North Carolina. At about the commencement of the Revolution War, my father moved to Randolph County where we were living when I volunteered in the horse company as aforesaid. At about the close of the war we moved to Rowan County, No. Carolina where there are many persons by whom I could prove my services. In the year 1823, I moved to this county Tipton, Tennessee and where I have resided ever since. I was once told that if I would send my discharge to Capt. Williams of Virginia, I should draw my pay. I gave it to a man by the name of Davenport. When he returned from Capt. Williams he informed me that Williams said that he had nothing to do with it, that Capt. Fuller, the man under whom I volunteered, was to make out the payroll. When I commanded my discharge, Davenport said he had fallen into a river and lost his pocket book and all the papers. I did not believe him. I was unable ever to reclaim it and have never received a cent for any Service ever rendered by me for the United States. I have no documentary evidence and know of no person in this State who can testify to my service.

I hereby relinquish every claim whatever to a pension except the present and declare that my name is not on the pension roll of this agency of any State."

HENRY YARBROUGH SEN.

And we the said Court do hereby certify and declare their opinion that the above named applicant was a Revolutionary Soldier and served as he states.

"The Yarbroughs were very prominent here, having large land holdings in the county as well as here in Salisbury where as you mention, President Washington stopped. The site of his old home is marked on a HISTORICAL MAP OF ROWAN COUNTY that I helped to design for our Bicentennial of 1953, as well as many other historic names and places."

FROM A LETTER OF MRS. NELLE JENKINS, OF ECCELLE, ALABAMA, MAY 2, 1957

"---Mr. Wagner, the Herald of the College of Arms in England, is getting up the authentic line. Mrs. Reeves corresponded with Captain Guy Yarbrough, Lord Alvingham, Earl of Yorkshire, about the line. But C. W. Yarbrough met him and visited in his home and they together had Mr. Wagner work on the line. I have the Yarbrough genealogy back to 1066 as prepared for the Earl for seating of King George's Coronation and the same was used in Queen Elizabeth's Coronation. Mr. Wagner says that Richard Yarbrough the immigrant, married Frances Proctor in London in 1635 and applied for emigration in 1643. In a court proceeding in Virginia, Richard stated he was born in Lincolnshire, England. He lived in Big Reedy Creek area in Virginia from 1643 to 1649. He probably married several times - tradition says once to Elizabeth Williams. Richard was in the vicinity of the present day Petersburg, Virginia at the age of 85 and died there in 1704. He gave his age as 87 on a deed in 1702. It is known that he had sons Thomas, John, Henry, Richard, Jr., James, Charles and three daughters. In a court record in which Richard was a witness he stated that Thomas had children Edmund, Elizabeth, Nancy, John, Richard, Patsy, Abraham, Hezekiah, a child who died in infancy and Eleanor. We are descended from the first Henry, son of Richard. All this from G. W. Yarbrough who did a 20 year research on the line and for the American Genealogical Society and for which he was made a "Fellow".

The College of Arms can't furnish anything on Christopher Yarbrough but he is supposed to be a son of Richard, Sr. or he might have been a younger brother who came along as a member of Richard's family in 1643.

The Yarbrough family is reportedly the eleventh oldest family in England.

The first settlement of the county was made near the present site of Covington in 1821 or 1822 by Jacob Tipton and Nathan Hartsfield. The following year settlements were made on the Mississippi River below the second Chickasaw Bluff by Jesse Benton and M. Phillips and on Indian Creek by M. Holshauser, Henry Yarbrough, William Kulbreth and J. Matthews.

As the County began rapidly to increase in population the old hand mills disappeared and horse and water powered mills were erected. The first water powered mill was built on a small stream seven miles southwest of Covington in about 1824 by Henry Yarbrough. The mills and steam cotton-gins of the County outside of the towns at the present are as follows: Fourth district, one grist mill and gin and one saw mill owned respectively by Don Yarbrough and Evans and Mitchell.

TENNESSEE COUSINS BY WORTH S. RAY

H Yarbrough was one of the first settlers of Tipton County.

Tipton County like other Counties carved out of the "Western District" had its quota of Revolutionary soldiers who sought lands in the country for their services. Known to have settled and lived in the country was Henry Yarbrough, Sr. aged 84 years.

THE ROWAN STORY 1753 - 1953

Hardly had N. C. entered into the new Union than the President of the U. S. paid her a visit early in 1791...May 29. As Washington entered the town and pushed his way through the crowd to the court house that stood in the public square where he was to be officially received, a cannon fired 15 salutes in his honor. After the reception the party moved down Corbin Street to the Yarbrough House, located in the middle of the west side of Main between Innes & Council, where they breakfasted.

Another society, the Thalian Association, began giving performances in the summer of 1829 at the home of Mrs. Edward Yarbrough, the place where Washington had spent a night.

Highway 59W in Tipton County was also known as Liberty St. and Randolph Road.

TIPTON COUNTY, TENNESSEE

TIPTON COUNTY ESTABLISHED OUT OF SHELBY COUNTY TERRITORY

Prior to the establishment of TIPTON COUNTY, the territory comprising it had been included in SHELBY County, which had supervision over it.

TIPTON COUNTY was established October 29, 1823. It was named by the Act "in memory of CAPT. JACOB TIPTON, who fell at St. Clair's defeat on 1791", and who was a son of COL. JOHN TIPTON of the WATAUGA VALLEY.

GEN. JACOB TIPTON, under whose supervision SHELBY COUNTY had been organized three years previously, is listed as one of the first settlers of TIPTON County. GEN. TIPTON is said to have had his residence in the county by 1821.

JUDGE Sam C. Williams names among the first settlers in the county:

Col. Jacob Tipton
Jesse Benton, Jr.
H. Yarbrough
Geo. W. Frazier
Henry Turnidge
E. H. Douglas
William Simonton
Robert Simonton
Robert Sanford
Andrew Greer

The JESSE BENTON, JR. named on this list is said to have been the brother of the famous THOMAS H. BENTON. JESSE BENTON lived at Randolph and was very active in promoting the interests of the place, which, for a time endeavored to rival MEMPHIS in importance. It did become an important center of the trade for the Western District at one time.

CAPT. TIPTON, the father of COL. JACOB TIPTON married Mary Bradford of Washington County, Tennessee; raised a company for the defense of the northwest against the Indians under GEN. ARTHUR ST. CLAIR. He was killed while leading a charge. He and his wife MARY had a son they had named ARMISTEAD BLEVINS TIPTON, whose name was changed to JACOB TIPTON, after the death of his father, and, it is said, at his request before leaving home on his Indian campaign, in the event of his death. This son was GEN. JACOB TIPTON of Tipton County.

ORGANIZATION OF TIPTON AND THE NAMES OF ITS FIRST OFFICERS

The first Court for TIPTON COUNTY was held on December 1, 1823 at the home of Nathan Hartsfield, which was located about two miles wouthwest of the present town of COVINGTON, which became the County seat of the County.

The first magistrates of TIPTON COUNTY commissioned and sworn into office at this meeting were:

JOHN C. McKEAN
NATHAN HARTSFIELD
JOHN T. BROWN

JACOB TIPTON
GEORGE ROBINSON

JOHN C. McKEAN was the first Chairman of the County Court, ANDREW GREER the first Clerk and JOHN TO. BROWN, the first Sheriff.

COVINGTON was selected as the County seat of TIPTON COUNTY, Land for the location of the town were donated by JOHN C. McLEMORE AND TIRREE RHODES, each of whom have been previously mentioned in these notes. RHODES was from VIRGINIA and McLEMORE from North Carolina.

MEMUCAN HUNT AND OTHERS FROM NORTH CAROLINA RECEIVE GRANTS

MEMUCAN HUNT, of North Carolina, the first State Treasurer after independence for that State and his son THOMAS HUNT and grandson, ANDERSON HUNT and other notables from North Carolina, received large grants of land in what is now Tipton County.

Others from North Carolina receiving big grants included ROBERT and THOMAS LOVE, brothers; R. T. MUNFORD, ANDREW GREER (of the Watauga family), JOHN RICE, ANTHONY BLEDSOE and COL HARDY MURFEE, of Rutherford County, Tennessee and North Carolina.

A commission who were to have charge of the survey of the new town of COVINGTON, and the sale of lots, was composed of several notable personages, as will be shown.

MARQUIS CALMES HELPED TO LAY ^{OUT} OFF THE TOWN OF COVINGTON.

Among the men who helped to lay off the lots and survey the townsite of COVINGTON, TENNESSEE, was that certain MARQUIS CALMES, whose family came originally from Maryland to the Valley of Virginia, and who were intermarried so much with the RICHARDSON family of Maryland. From Maryland, the Calmes family, spread out and went from near Winchester into both Kentucky and Georgia, always accompanied by some of their kinsmen the RICHARDSONS and BUCKS. Others on the commission to lay off COVINGTON were JOHN ECKFORD, ROBERT G. GREEN, E. F. POPE and ALEXANDER ROBERTSON.

CALMES' TAVERN was the first hotel or public house of entertainment in the town of COVINGTON. Later the same hotel was taken over by a man by the name of WILLIAMS.

ROBERT G. GREEN, of this commission, was a lawyer, and he and THOMAS TAYLOR were the first legal practitioners in the town and county seat. It is said that the first physician of the town was DR. CHARLES C. FISHER.

The town of RANDOLPH, a rival in the early days of COVINGTON for the honor of being the county seat, was also the home of a number of notable families, including JESSE BENTON, from North Carolina, ORVILLE SHELBY, relative of the Governor of Kentucky, originally from the Watauga settlement in east Tennessee, and several members of the ALSTON FAMILY, of VIRGINIA, North Carolina, and SOUTH CAROLINA, of which latter State it furnished an early day GOVERNOR. The town of RANDOLPH is said to have been named for JOHN RANDOLPH of ROANOKE, who had several kinsmen and old neighbors who lived in the town. Also, in and near the town of RANDOLPH there are records that show that

K. H. DOUGLAS
GEORGE W. FRAZIER
THOMAS ROBINSON
M. PHILLIPS

R. H. MUNFORD
A. N. McALLISTER
W. P. MILLS
ANDERSON HUNT

and families named SIMPSON and CLEMENT lived there for a time, at least.

THOMAS RALP built a horse mill not far from COVINGTON, the first in TIPTON CO.

RESIDENTS OF SEVERAL EARLY TIPTON COUNTY "SETTLEMENTS".

Naturally, like other frontier counties TIPTON had several "settlements" along the banks of the HATCHIE and the FORKED DEER tributaries. Among these were one on BIG CREEK, which was the home of

Dr. R. H. Rose
Henry Turnage
Captain Jones
Captain Newman
Alfred Hill
Major LaGrande

In the Indian Creek "settlement" there were families by the name of SMITH, OWENS, KELLERS, KINNEYS and WALKS.

There was also a WHITE and ARCHER settlement, where C. C. ARCHER, certain members of the WHITE FAMILY - their names unknown - GEORGE SHARKLEY and a WILLIAM McGUIRE resided.

E. T. POPE, H. TERRELL, R. W. SANFORD, MAJ. LAUDERDALE (probably a member of the family of COL. JAMES LAUDERDALE, killed at the battle of NEW ORLEANS, CAT. SCURRY and DR. HOLD are attributed to early settlement in the county, without mention of where they lived. Also families of the name of DURHAM, MITCHELL, GARLAND, PARRISH, PRYOR, HILL and DAVIS.

Some of the original area of TIPTON COUNTY, TENNESSEE, was appropriated in 1835 to make up the territory assigned for the establishment of LAUDERDALE COUNTY, but just what part and how much, the compiler has been unable to ascertain, from any record that has come to his notice.

TIPTON COUNTY HAD MANY REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIERS

TIPTON COUNTY, like the other counties carved out of the "Western District" had its quota of revolutionary soldiers who sought lands in the county for their services. The names of many of them appear in the foregoing notes. Others who are known to have settled and lived in the county, were: COL. THOMAS GOOD, 81 years of age (1840); WILLIAM McFERRIN 85 years of age; VINCENT VOSS, who was 84 years of age and also HENRY YARBROUGH, SR., aged 84 years.

building; the earliest resident physician, Dr. Samuel L. Teator, and the first lawyer, Charles McAlister.

TIPTON COUNTY

This county was given its name by legislative act "in memory of Captain Jacob Tipton, who fell at St. Clair's defeat of 1791." His son, Colonel Jacob Tipton²¹ was one of the earliest settlers of the county, in 1821.

Other early settlers were Jesse Benton, Jr., H. Yarborough, Geo. W. Frazier, Henry Turnidge, K. H. Douglass, Wm. and Robert Simonton, Robert Sanford and Andrew Greer.

North Carolina grants laid in this county included those of Robert and Thomas Love, 15,000 acres; R. T. Mumford, 8200 acres; Andrew Greer, M. Hunt, and John Rice, 5000 acres each; Anthony Bledsoe, 4700 acres, and Hardy Murfree, 1260 acres. An incident connected with the re-location of these old grants in 1819-20 was the death of one of the surveyors, Richard Hightower, father-in-law of the distinguished lawyer of Nashville, O. B. Hayes. This occurred at a fine spring a few miles south of the site of Covington, afterwards known as Hightower's Spring.

On the first day of December, 1823, the first court was organized at the house of Nathan Hartsfield, two miles southwest of the present Covington. The first magistrates commissioned were: Nathan Hartsfield, John T. Brown, Jacob Tipton, Andrew Greer, John C. McKean and George Robinson. McKean was the first chairman; Greer first clerk, and Brown the first sheriff.

COVINGTON

When the county seat was located, the honor fell to Covington, the site being donated by John C. McLemore and Tyree Rhodes.

²¹ Captain Tipton was of the East Tennessee family of the name. He married Mary Bradford, of Washington County; raised a company for the defense of the northwest against the Indians, under Gen. Arthur St. Clair. He was killed while starting out to lead his men in a charge, on November 4, 1791. His last injunction to his wife, to change the name of their son, "Armistead Blevins," to "Jacob"—his own—was complied with.

"The principle of the center" operated here against the bluff on which Randolph later stood.

The commission having charge of the survey of the new town and the sale of lots, as given in their advertisement in the Jackson Gazette, was composed of Marquis Calmes, John Eckford, Robert G. Green, E. F. Pope and Alex. Robinson. They set forth as the chief attraction "a copious spring that breaks out of a bold bluff west of the square." The sale of lots brought an aggregate of about $8,500.00. The town was incorporated in 1826.

Calmes' Tavern was the first house of entertainment, later taken over by the father of Joseph S. Williams, author of Old Times in West Tennessee.²² The tavern is described as two stories high, built of hewn logs; sixty feet long and twenty feet wide; fronted by a broad gallery; and it had a "ball-room." The town was not without a dancing master.

Robert G. Green and Thomas Taylor were the first lawyers; and Dr. Charles G. Fisher, perhaps, the first doctor.

The county was noted, during the period, for its superior educational facilities, which naturally made it a cultural center.

RANDOLPH

This town, named for John Randolph of Roanoke, was laid out in 1828, but improved but little until 1830. Its history is outlined in preceding chapters. Jesse Benton, Jr., Orville Shelby, and the Alstons, all of historic families, lived in or near the town. Phelan says that "Randolph soon became a flourishing town. Indeed, at first all indications pointed to its future success in the contest for commercial mastery which geographical position forced upon the two towns Randolph and Memphis."

WEAKLEY COUNTY

The new county of Weakley took the name of Colonel Robert Weakley (1764-1845), a distinguished citizen of Davidson County.²³

²² Many interesting and amusing reminiscences of Covington, Randolph and the county may be found in the book, now rare.

²³ Speaker of the State Senate at the time the county was created; and had held the same office in 1819; member of Congress 1809-11, and

Grave of Revolutionary Soldier

Landon Yarbrough, r., along with members of the Tipton County Bicentennial Commission, visited the grave of his great-great-great-grandfather this past weekend. Henry Yarbrough Sr., who is buried in Indian Creek Com-tery near Holly Grove, is one of the few Revolutionary War soldiers who lived in Tipton County. Other committeemen are, l to r, J. L. "Pop" Turner, Mrs. Paul Erwin and Judge Mark Walker.

DAR To Mark Grave Of ^{Nov 2, 1963} Revolutionary War Veteran

The Tipton Chapter of DAR will place their bronze marker at the grave of the only Revolutionary soldier known to be buried in Tipton County on Nov. 2 at 3 p.m.

The soldier was Henry Yarbrough (or Yarbrow) who is buried in Indian Creek Cemetery. The DAR graveside ritual will be presented by Mrs. Shuler Jamieson, regent, and other DAR members with Judge Mark Walker making the address. A cordial invitation is extended to the public and to his many descendants living in Tipton County.

Henry Yarbrough was lineally descended from the Earl of Yorkshire of Lincolnshire, England, who was a Dane and one of the 60,000 who helped the Duke of Normandy conquer England in 1066. The earldom still exists.

In 1643, Richard Yarbrough and his young wife ~~Frances~~ Practor, sailed to America, settling in Amelia County, Virginia.

FRANCES

Their descendant, Henry Yarbrough born 1765 and died 1843, in company with Smith, McQuire, Matthews, Tipton and other families, came to Tipton County, Tenn., in 1823. He was the fourth white settler and first magistrate of Tipton County.

He settled on a 75-acre tract of land bought from Newton Cannon of Williamson County for $1700. The land was located on Indian Creek where he was an early operator of a grist mill.

In 1830, David and Thomas, sons of Thomas Yarbrow, followed their uncle to Tipton County. His first wife was the widow, Brigett Davis, who died in Rowan County, N. C., and his second wife was Mary Cunningham, widow of Thomas Cunningham of N. C.

In will book A, page 81 in Tipton County, he names the following children:

Edward who married Jane Culbreath; Anderson C., married Mary Larimore; Elizabeth, married Willis Treedle; Jane, who married Henry Billings;

Biddy (Obedience) who married John Smith; Mary, who also married a Smith; Martha married Charles A. Smith; Catherine, who married a Smith. Henry Jr. died unmarried and is buried by his father.

At the September term of Tipton County Court in 1833, he personally applied for a pension for Revolutionary War services which was granted. He received $12.50 per semi-annum. In this record he describes his service as a private in the Horse Company of Capt. Fuller in 1779 and 1780 in the partisan war.

the county. He is the only Revolutionary soldier known to be buried in the county. He was a magistrate from the first district in the first court. He owned the first gristmill located on Indian Creek where remains can still be seen in low water. He married Bridgett Davis in Rowan County, N.C. on August 29, 1785 and Mary Cunningham in Rowan County, N.C. on September 13, 1804. He died January 30, 1843 and is buried in Indian Creek Graveyard. We do not know if Mary Cunningham died in North Carolina or Tennessee. He received a pension in 1833 for services in the Revolution serving under Capt. Jacob Williams of Dan River and in the application, he declares that his father and family lived in Davidson County, North Carolina where they have skirmishes and how it became necessary to hide in the woods when he came home and other interesting items.

Children by his first wife were:
Elizabeth 1791-1872 mar. Willis Freedle on Feb. 6, 1819
Jane mar. Henry Billings

Anderson C. 1810-1862 mar. Mary Lurimore 1804-1856
Martha 1812-1866 mar. Charles A. Smith 1817-1862

Edward Yarbrough, son of Henry and Mary Cunningham Yarbrough, was born October 20, 1805 in Davidson County, N.C. He came to Tipton County when his father came and settled on Indian Creek in 1822 or 23. He owned land on Indian Creek and Mining Creek and also owned slaves. He married Jane Kulbreath, daughter of William Kulbreath, who also was born in Davidson County, N.C. They were married March 19, 1826 in Tipton County, Tennessee.

On the Dyleaf of his account book covering the years 1829 to 1874, Manoh Yarbrough of St. Clair County, Alabama wrote "My cousin, Edward Yarbrough of Tipton County, Tennessee, Covington, Post Office."

Edward died February 4, 1866 at 3 a.m. Jane Died January 31, 1892 at 8:10 a.m. Both are buried in Indian Creek Graveyard.

Their children were:

James H. born August 7, 1846 and died Feb. 14, 1847.
Charles A. born August 7, 1846 mar. Sameba McIntosh Smith.

Landon Bradford Yarbrough, the son of Edward and Jane Kulbreath Yarbrough, was born on Sept. 6, 1827 in Tipton County, Tennessee. In the family Bible we find his name as Bradley and in legal documents as Bradford.

Brad Yarbrough was a man of exceptionally good looks but overbearing in personality. He and his brother-in-law, William Kinney had been having family troubles for some time. On an election day, they met on the road to Liberty. After a few words, Brad Yarbrough reached from his horse and hooked his walking cane around the neck of William Kinney who was seated in his wagon. William Kinney then drew his pistol and killed Brad Yarbrough. William Kinney was never prosecuted. This was June 11, 1874. (This was told by Mrs. Ola Dickey Kinney in the summer of 1953 and had been told to her by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Jim Kinney.)

The Brad Yarbrough farm was directly in front of the Aubrey Dickey farm.

His first marriage was to Susan McGuire, daughter of William and Frances McGuire on April 3, 1846. She was born August 26, 1828 and died March 13, 1853 at the age of 24 years.

Their children were:

Rosely V. was born Feb. 18, 1850 in Tipton County and died Oct. 12, 1934 in St. Louis. She married (1) George W. Whitlock and (2) William Schaeffer.
James L. born 1851

Shortly after Susan's death Brad married Salomey Smith, daughter of David M. and Sally Smith on June 2, 1853. She was born March 7, 1829 and died June 9, 1892. Brad Yarbrough and both wives are buried in Indian Creek Cemetery.

Their children were:

Molly 1856 mar. (1) Tom Smith, (2) Hilda Thomas
Fannie mar. (1) Edward T., (2) Will Ladd
Alice 1864 mar. Paul Billings
Eva 1867-1940 mar. Johnson E. Dickey

Eva Yarbrough was born Oct. 24, 1867 and died March 5, 1940 and is buried in Munford Cemetery in Covington, Tennessee. She married Johnson Dickey.

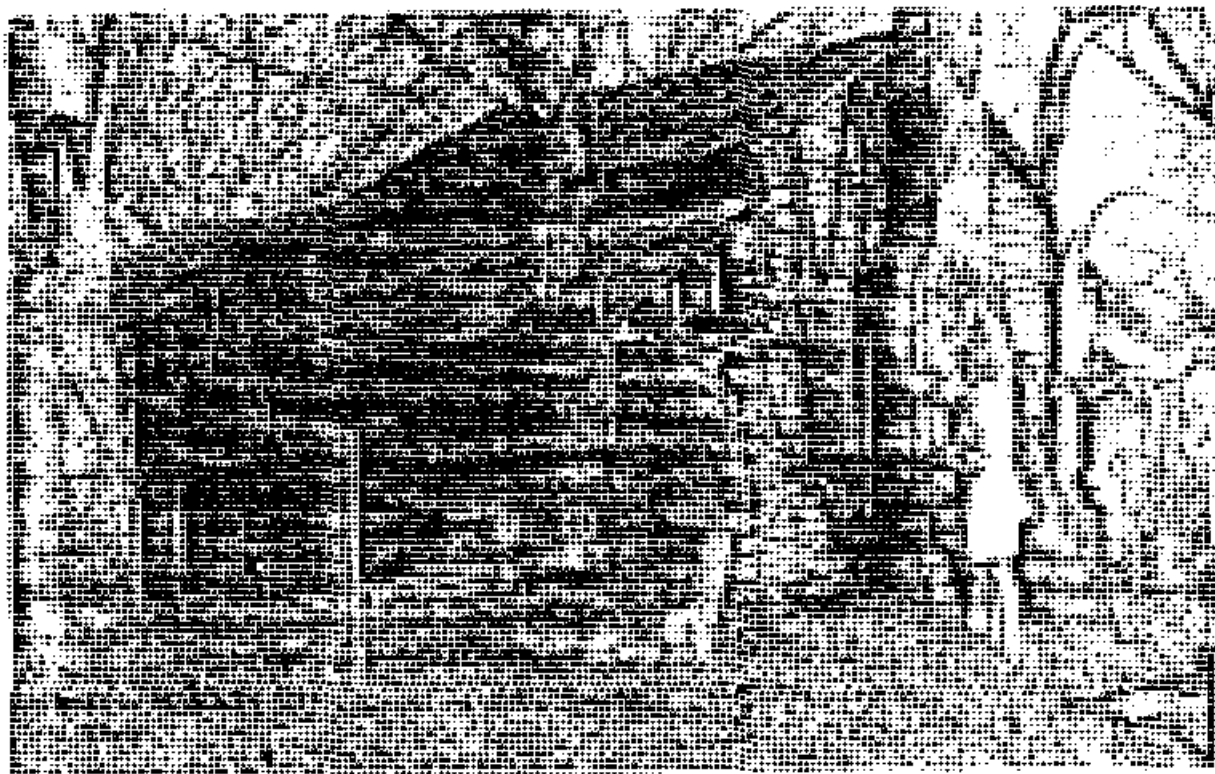

Their children were:

Ola 1886-1958 mar. Lon Kinney
Austin 1889-1952 mar. Lois Smith
Ruby 1893-? mar. Bill Todd
Homer 1895 - died early in life
Sallie Grace 1897 - died early in life

One of County's Oldest (The house is believed to be built by the family at one time.)

This log cabin is believed to be one of the oldest houses in Tipton County. The house, located on the Brighton-Holly Grove Road, is owned by Mrs. Leno Mills. According to Mrs. Mills, who lived in the house from 1930 until 1957, the historical structure is more than 100 years old. "I don't know the exact age of the house, but it was standing during the Civil War," said Mrs. Mills. "There weren't any additions to the house while my family lived there, but it was added to prior to that." Mrs. Mills explained that the doors are still on the hinges and most of the windows are still intact.

DEED RECORDS OF TIPTON COUNTY, TENNESSEE

The Deed Records of Tipton County, Tennessee are located at the Tipton County Courthouse, Covington, Tennessee. These records were copied and abstracted during the month of May, 1984.

The Yarbrough name is spelled in all cases as it appeared in the Deed. In some cases the name is spelled "Yarbro" on the index and in the heading of the instrument, but spelled "Yarbrough" in the body of the deed.

Some deeds had blanks - apparently the clerk or registrar had intended to fill in the space later and it was never done - these blanks are denoted by a line (_____) in these copies. When a word was illegible it is shown with a line and question mark (____?)

Other words or names that were not legible are shown with a question mark following the word (?).

R. V. Whitlock

For and in consideration of the sum of one thousand dollars to me in hand paid the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged I have this day bargained and sold and do hereby convey to my daughter R. V. Whitlock wife of O. W. Whitlock a certain tract of land lying and being in the County of Tipton and State of Tennessee in District No. 2 containing by estimation fifty acres more or less. Beginning at the south west corner of my fifty acre tract purchased by me from W. C. Archer running thence north 77 poles to a stake the north west corner of said tract - thence east 104 poles to red oak black gum pointers thence south 77 poles to a small ash bush in the south boundary line. Thence west to the beginning of said fifty acre tract purchased by me from W. C. Archer and known as part of the Jno B. Wiseman tract. To have and to hold the same to the said R. V. Whitlock her heirs and assigns forever. I hereby covenant and agree to warrant and defend the title to the said above conveyance of land to the said R. V. Whitlock her heirs and assigns forever. I further covenant that I as lawfully seized of said land, have a good right to convey it and that the same is unencumbered. In testimony of which I have herunto set my hand and seal this Feby 12 1872.

Copied 25 April 1984 by Karen Mazock:

There are four tombstones located in an overgrown section of the cemetery. Because of the proximity to the Yarbrough graves and possible relationships to the Yarbrough family, the tombstones were copied and pictures taken. The tombstone of Peter Winn was broken and the death date completely illegible. Because there was only one picture left on the film, the Winn Tombstone was placed near the Clark Tombstone for the picture. Its correct location is given below:

Tiptonville local news

Yarbro event set for St. Louis

The fifth national Yarbro Conference will be held at Holiday Inn Riverfront in St. Louis Aug. 7, 8 and 9.

Over 100 Yarbrough family and related members from all over the United States have registered for the national meeting. West Tennesseans will make up the largest delegation with 27 signed to attend.

Former U.S. Senator Ralph W. Yarborough of Austin, Texas, and Lt. General William P. Yarbrough of Southern Pines, N.C., will be principal speakers at the Saturday night family banquet. NASCAR race car driver and crew chief Cale Yarborough of South Carolina, and rock and folk singer Glenn Yarbrough of California, are scheduled to appear.

Also on the memorial program, Charles R. Yarbro of Reelfoot Lake will eulogize Robert Price Yarbrough of Charlotte, N.C., who died almost a month ago, July 10, 1987. Mr. Yarbrough, a native Mississippian and retired specialty timber mill manager, is being remembered as "Father of the National Yarbrough Conference," spearheading all the sessions and hosting the first and last year's conference. He was working on the program for the St. Louis meeting when he died. He led the movement to permanently mark the grave in Blandford Church Cemetery at Petersburg, Va., of the earliest known Yarbrough immigrant, Richard Yarbrough, who came to America from England in the 1640s and died in 1702. Mr. Yarbrough was also author of the book "Yarbrough, A Branch through Ambrose the Emigrant."

On the banquet program Mrs. Charles Yarbro will speak on genealogical research and Alfred Henry Yarbro will give the invocation. Karen Martin Mazock of Virginia will talk on the role of Yarbrough women in the family history and conduct a "red rose" ceremony honoring the wives and daughters of family leaders who have died recently.

Mr. Yarbro of Route 1, Tiptonville, is editor of the "Interim News Sheet for the Yarbrough Family Magazine," publishing nine editions yearly. He is also a member of the NYC board of directors. Alfred Yarbro serves the board as secretary.

The Missouri meeting, hosted by Ms. Arlene Weldinger and her mother, Mrs. May Y. Sidney, of St. Louis, will also feature genealogy workshops Friday and Saturday, board meetings, entertainment, and a "farewell" breakfast Sunday.

tions of Torre's labours which relate to this part of the diocese; he collected what could be found in Dods-worth; he transcribed Hopkinson's pedigrees, and he formed a large collection of church notes from the West Riding churches, and of miscellaneous information respecting the townships which compose it. These now remain in the library at Campsal, monuments of his industry and of the peculiar turn of his mind. But there are also in that library the remains of the still greater collection towards the same object, made nearly a century before by Dr. Johnston of Pontefract. Of these there are many volumes, which were purchased by Mr. Frank of the family of Dr. Johnston, consisting of transcripts of records, copies from Dods-worth, church and parochial notices by Dr. Johnston, a large collection of trickings of monuments and old mansions in Yorkshire, abstracts of the evidences of West Riding families, with the rough drafts of the dissertations which Dr. Johnston prepared of the descent and alliance of some of the principal families in the county. There are also many volumes of Dr. Johnston's collections of genealogies, some copied from public documents, but others, the compilations of the doctor himself, and extremely valuable, since the facts which they contain are not perhaps elsewhere to be found. The whole is in fact the apparatus for a topographical account of Yorkshire, but there are many parts of the county for which there is little or nothing in these volumes, and whoever expects to find in them any digested account of any parish or manor, such as the account of Aston in the specimen printed by Bowyer, will assuredly be mistaken. It is to be feared that Johnston's topographical survey of the county, which from that specimen and prospect must once have existed, has been lost. Neither there much remaining of his correspondence. The value of these collections is also diminished to great degree by the hasty manner in which the manual act of writing was performed, nor can at practice in reading after him enable a person to determine with certainty what proper name is meant in some cases where it is of importance to determine it. It remains to be added that the collections both of Dr. Johnston and Mr. Frank, are preserved with the care which ought to be exercised over such remains.

Mr. Bacon Frank, the nephew and heir of the recorder, much improved the hall at Campsal, and resided here during the whole of a long life, being a very assiduous member of the magistracy of the county.

The hall is at present in the hands of a tenant, Mr. Joseph Radcliffe, bart.

The successors to the Fletchers at Brayton-hall were the Yarboroughs, by whom the name was changed for Campsmount.

Francis Yarborough, son of Edmund, (by Margaret daughter of Vincent Grantham,) son of Charles Yarborough, of Yarborough in Lincolnshire, married a daughter of Leonard Wray, of Yorkshire, by whom he had Edmund Yarborough, of Balne-hall who married one of the coheirs of Thomas Wormley, of Cusworth and Hatfield. He had Sir Nicholas, of Balne (from whom descend the Yarborough of Heslington, near York), and Thomas, the first settler at Campsal.

PEDIGREE OF YARBOROUGH, OF CAMPSMOUNT.

Arms. Per pale argent and azure, a chevron between 3 chaplets counter-changed.

Ann, 1st wife, dau. of Thomas Ellis, of Nodhill, county of Bed. eldest son of Sir Thomas Ellis, of Wyham, co. THOMAS YARBOROUGH, of Campsmount, esq. eldest son and heir; baptized 23 May, 1687; died 1 Septem. 1772; bur. at Campsal.	JOANNA, 3 daughter of Tobiah Harvey, of Womersley, esq. mar. 8 February, 1718; died 9 March, 1768, and was buried at Campsal on the 7th. EDMUND YARBOROUGH, bap. 15 July, 1688; barrister-at-law, and becher of Gray's-inn died unmarried, 1764. WILLIAM YARBOROUGH, bap. 12 August, 1689; bur. 17 Nov. 1690. HENRY YARBOROUGH, bap. 9 June, 1691; fellow of Jesus Col., Camb., D.D. and rector of Tewling, in Herts; died unmar. 1774 and was bur. at Campsal. NICHOLAS YARBOROUGH, bap. 18 July, 1683; was bred a merchant; died unmarried and was buried at Campsal, 27 Nov. 1731. FRANCIS YARBOROUGH, bap. 11 June, 1694; fellow of University Col. Ox. and chosen in 1745, principal of Breton Nose, D.D. and rector of Aynho, co. Northamp.; died unmarried, 25 April, 1770; bur. at Campsal.
MARY, baptized 2 June, 1719, died unmarried before her father, 15 March, 1762; and was buried at Campsal.	THOMAS, bap. 19 Aug. 1723; d. unmar. before her father, 1 Aug. 1765; b. at Campsal. DOROTHY, bap. 9 bur. 18 Nov. 1725. ANNE, bap. 21 May, 1728; the elder of the two surviving daughters and coheirs, died unmar. 27 April, 1793, and was buried at Campsal. ELIZABETH, bap. 30 Oct. 1729; the younger of the two daughters and coheirs, died unmarried 23 Nov. 1801, and was buried at Campsal. BENEDICT, bap. 16 Nov. 1731, bur. 6 Oct. 1792. SARAH, bap. 27 June, 1734, bur. 7 June, 1735. THOMAS, baptized 23 June, buried 5 August, 1738.

The two Miss Yarboroughs, who were become the only remaining descendants of Mr. Yarborough, the first settler at Campsal, all their uncles having died unmarried, selected for their heir one of their nearest relations on the mother's side, George

Cooke, esq., then of Streethorpe, whose mother was another of the daughters of Tobiah Harvey, of Womersley. They enjoined him to take the name of Yarborough, and to bear the arms, for which he obtained the royal permission on July 5, 1802.

Ho, ho, you blind folk, darkened in the cloud
Of ignorant fumes thick and mystical,
Take heed of my horn, toting all aloud,
With boyssous sounds, and blasts boreal,
Giving you warning of the judgment final, &c.

There is a resemblance between the poem and the inscription, in the style and subject, and probably they are nearly of even date; perhaps the latter part of the reign of Edward IV.; when this church was given to the ladies of Wallingwells, and the patronage to the University of Cambridge.

Dodsworth has preserved some inscriptions formerly in the windows, of which no part remains.

Orate pro bono statu Roberti Brayton; qui istam fenestram fieri fecit 1500.

Orate pro animâ Joh'is Clarkson; et pro bono statu Alicie uxoris dicti Joh'is, et Willielmi Clarkson, et Isabelle uxoris ejus; qui istam, &c.

Orate pro animabus Roberti Heton et Johanne uxoris ejus; qui istam, &c.

Orate pro animabus Joh'is Cresacre et Elizabeth uxoris ejus; qui istam, &c.

Orate pro animabus Nicholai Wallare et Margarete uxoris ejus; qui istam, &c.

There were also several shields of arms of the ancient baronage of England; Warren, Despencer, Newmarch (gules, five fusils in fess or), and Laci, or, a lion rampant purple; and on another shield, quarterly argent and gules, a bend sable, a label of five points argent. Also the three purple lions on a gold field, of Cresacre.

Here are no monumental memorials of the old aristocracy of Campsal, the Braytons, Saint Pauls, and Fletchers; or of the old aristocracy of the distant townships. But there are several memorials of the later families, the Yarboroughs, Franks, Hamsdens, and Hunfreys.

To the beloved memory of Anne, late virtuous and dear wife of Thomas Yarburgh, esq. and eldest daughter of Thomas Ellys, esq. who was in this church interred July the 10th, Anno Dom. 1682. Posuit maritus moriens.

and for every salutary institution calculated to promote and encourage it.
He was a man of singular moderation and sound judgment.

He had a genuine love of virtue, heightened by rational unaffected piety,
and expressed in a life uniformly exemplary and instructive.

His other accomplishments were rendered still more amiable and useful by a peculiar elegance and politeness of manners.

The great object of his life seems to have been a faithful discharge of the duties of his important station.

How well he succeeded in this truly honourable purpose best appears from the respect which is paid to his memory by all that have been witnesses of his conduct, those especially who have lived under his government and profited by his example.

He died the 25th day of April, 1770, in the 76th year of his age.

of Mary, their eldest daughter, who died March 15, 1762;
of Johanna, their second daughter, who died August 1, 1765;

of the Rev. Henry Yarborough, D.D.
forty years Rector of Tevin in Hertfordshire, third son of Thomas Yarburgh, of Campsal, Esq.

this Monument is erected according to the wills of Ann and Elizabeth,
the two youngest daughters of the above Thomas and Johanna Yarborough,

the former of whom died April 27, 1793, the latter, Nov.
23, 1801.

whose true piety, extensive charities, and unbounded benevolence,
the above tablet is by their grateful executors designed to commemorate.

The tablet referred to is by Flaxman. It contains a groupe in alto relievo, of the young, the aged, the sick, and the blind, who are receiving relief at the hands of two female figures.

The inscription on the monument of Mr. Frank, the recorder, was written by his friend, Dr. Ducarel:—

Sacred to the memory of Richard Frank, of Campsal, Esq.
Recorder of the Corporations of Pontefract and Doncaster,
in the county of York,

and Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries of London.
He married Margaret, daughter and coheir of Robert Frank, of Pontefract, Esq.

He was an unbiassed and upright magistrate,
a lover and encourager of learning,
a faithful friend, and a most affectionate husband:

beloved by rich and poor,
because his chief delight was in doing good.
He departed this life universally lamented
May 22, 1762, aged 64.

Margaret, his disconsolate widow, erected this monument, 1763.

On the floor are memorials for Mr. Matthew Frank, his wife, and three daughters; also for Toby Hunfrey, of Askern, esq. who died in 1696, and Ann his wife, who died in 1669.

On the wall, a monument to the memory of Mrs.
Elizabeth Ellys, second daughter of Thomas, son
of

Mrs. E. Mazock,
825-202 Waterview Place,
Virginia Beach,
VA 23452,
U.S.A.

Dear Mrs. Mazock,

I write to inform you of the outcome of the investigation I have made among the official records of the College of Arms concerning Richard Yarburgh, the supposed emigrant to Virginia. Unfortunately, I can not advise you that the searches have yielded a positive result.

In the first instance, I find a pedigree was officially registered here at the Visitation of the county of York, carried out by the Heralds in 1665/6, this pedigree being headed by one Eustacius de Yarborough who is to be identified with the Eustacius mentioned in your letter of 3 March. Sixteenth in descent from this Eustacius is one Edmund Yarburgh of Bulne Hall in the county of York who died 6 May 1631, and who married Sarah, the daughter and coheir of Thomas Wormeley. This pedigree was certified by Thomas Yarburgh of Campsall in the county of York, in the Commission of the Peace for that county, and his brother Edmund Yarburgh of Doncaster, Doctor of Physick, who was then aged 40. These two persons were two of the sons of Edmund and Sarah. In testifying to the pedigree, they referred to their surviving brother, Sir Nicholas Yarburgh, and a sister Frances, the wife of Sir John Reresby. Had they had a brother, Richard, who emigrated to Virginia, it is highly probable that he would have been mentioned.

Sir Nicholas Yarburgh also made an entry in 1666, in which he refers to his own son, Richard, a merchant in London, whose elder brother was then aged 27. Clearly this Richard is too young to be identified with the emigrant.

In the 18th century, John Charles Brooke, Somerset Herald of Arms from 1777 to 1794, undertook genealogical work on the above family, the results being lodged in his unofficial private collection. This reveals the existence of a fourth and youngest son for Edmund and Sarah Yarburgh, he being John Yarburgh who died 5 February 1655, aged 24, and who was buried at Bellfries Church, York. Again, no reference is made to any Richard who can be identified with the emigrant.

In the 1930's, extensive work was undertaken on the mediaeval ancestry of Edmund Yarburgh of Bulne Hall. As a result, much of the early part of the 1665/6 pedigree has been discredited. The evidences then collated substantiated the pedigree back to one Germund who was living in 1093. Eustacius de Yarborough does not feature in this more recent registration.

29 July 1986

At the Visitation of the county of Lincoln, carried out by the Heralds in 1634, a further pedigree was entered, the same being headed by Charles Yarbrough of Yarbrough in the county of Lincoln, the latter's cousin being Francis, the father of Edmund Yarburgh of Bulne Hall. Although this pedigree covers the period during which Richard Yarburgh, the emigrant, is supposed to have been born, it contains no reference to anyone who can be identified with him.

In the private papers of Arthur Larken, Richmond Herald at the end of the 19th century, I find extensive Yarborough material relating to several families of that surname residing in Lincolnshire, in particular the Yarboroughs of Alvingham and of Covenham St. Mary at the beginning of the 17th century. Neither of these families has any relevant Richard.

The Alvingham Yarboroughs descend from one Thomas Yerburch or Yarborough, whose will was dated 1565. Later 20th century registration has been effected for the descendants of the brother of this Thomas, namely Richard Yerburch of Over Poynton in the county of Lincoln, whose will was dated 1545. Again, no relevant Richard is to be found therein.

In the private papers of Sir Alfred Scott Gatty, who was Garter King of Arms from 1904 until 1918, I have found over 300 folios of Yarbrough evidences. Most of this relates to the Middle Ages. Unfortunately, any later material does not include reference to any Richard who might stand as a possible candidate for Richard the emigrant.

In your letter of 11 April, you refer to one Sir William Yarborough who married Ann, the daughter of Edwin Sandys, Archbishop of York. I find no reference to any Sir William in the recognised lists of Knights. Material relating to the Sandys family shows that the above Ann married Sir William Barn of Woolwich; but no Yarborough connection is noted.

Again, in your letter of 11 April you refer to Richard Yerburch, aged 22, who married Frances Proctor in 1635, he being then aged 22, and of St. Dunstan's in the West. This possible Richard is rendered less likely by a subsequent entry at St. Dunstan's. This entry concerns the burial of "Frances Yarberrow buried in ye Chancell from St. Martin's in ye Fields" on 14 May 1680. It seems probable that this burial relates to the Frances Proctor of ^{the} 1635 marriage, thus making it unlikely that her husband, Richard, had emigrated to Virginia.

You make interesting reference to Edmund Yarroborrow, son of Edmund Yarroborrow "late of York", who subsequent to 1646 was apparently still under age. Again, this man would appear to be just too young to be identified with Edmund Yarbrough, the son of Edmund of Bulne Hall. This Edmund is supposed to be 40 in 1665/6.

In the absence of any immediately relevant material in the College of Arms, I am wondering whether an examination has been made of the Mormon microfiche in an endeavour to see whether any possible baptisms for a Richard, or even an Edmund, can be located. This might then give a lead to a precise area in this country where specific searches could be made. I am also wondering whether any further information on Richard might be forthcoming from Virginia. I understand that the name of his wife remains unknown; but possibly any property is less elusive. Property was frequently named after places in this country, which thus provides a useful lead. At the moment, it would be possible to undertake wider searches among local and national archives; but these would be correspondingly expensive and there cannot be any guarantee of success. For this reason, anything that might provide a clue as to his place of origin would be extremely helpful.

thorpe; this is E. T.—but in the marsh is W. T'. 'Why then we must ride there, and you, my friend, must go for that key'. Here the civil farmer came out to us, and put up our horses in his stables, wherein we had a fine rat hunt. We now were right, for in this church is an handsome monument of black marble, with busts of white marble of Charles Bertie (son of an Earl of Lindsey,) and of his wife.

It is a pretty, neat church; with a very old front, worthy of my trouble. We now took to the sea sands, the widest I ever rode upon; and these we continued for 2 miles, with a north wind full against us, impregnating our lungs with the healthful saline air, till we arrived at Saltfleet. This is a poor place, under the sea bank, with a wretched inn-bathing-house; where we had—Ah! such a dinner! With such cheese! Nothing but the sea view to support us. Only one gentleman there, Dr C—k of Louth; what can a man do here alone, without a female helpmate? We, now, enquired our forward road; and got little intelligence except that the distance was 18 miles: Coll B. would engage the ostler, (a sailor,) as his guide; and for that purpose, to ride his mare. I push'd forward for some miles, on a very easy road to find; when the curricule came up, and I prevail'd upon the Coll to discharge the guide. Then we proceeded together, in the curricule, thro' the villages of Marsh-Chapel, Tetney and Humberstone, for about 10 miles, against a stormy nth wind:

(C) Oh, how this gloom, and cold weather suit me. (D) Surely it is too cold, and dreary: (C) Better these than heat, and sunshine; if it had been hot weather I could not have continued this tour; but should have given up: you like hot weather! (B) I do like sun, and summer; everything appears gay and happy; nature comes forth with renovated charms, and we grow young again: November of year, and life, comes too soon, when we languish for ease, candles, and cards. The sun may relax our frames, but he exhilarates our hearts.

We, now, came upon the sea coast, opposite the Humber's mouth, and then near, or upon the sands, to Cleathorps Inn, a bathing place of a better complexion than the 2 others we have seen upon this coast; for here are large dining room, and a card room. But why come we here? A place to be avoided by tourists, as in no place are you so much neglected! There to lodge in a cock-loft! The company shirk you; and conversation were thrown away. We desired privacy, and procured a dirry little parlour, with a fire, for it was dismally cold; our room was fill'd with smoke; at last we did get some tolerable victuals to eat, and we sat muddling over the fire. I never, by choice, stop at public places; I may never tour again; and if I do can I go alone! If in company must I be dictator? Must I have absolute rule? And have from my comrade an agreement properly sign'd and stamp'd? At ten o'clock, my letters (that I sent for) arrived from Grimsby; but they were so numerous, and some so full of worries, that I could only read them over by 12 o'clock. The following—of good presage I hope, cheer'd my mind.*

My dear father

I hope I am become a good boy & I hope Biddy and me will be come a comfort to you and my mother. I am very well. Adieu.

your aff^{te} Son

Federick Byng.

July 12th. I look'd at the weather, at 4, and at 6 o'clock, when it was very black, and lowering: however, at 7 o'clock, when I arose, the day mended.

Our breakfast was hast'ned as much as possible, and we felt happy to get away: tho' from the best of the Lincolnshire bathing shops; where the people were civil, and the bill reasonable.

Over 3 miles of boggy turf we rode to Grimsby, where in religious times stood a priory, and a nunnery, now a wretched borough, existing only by venality; and with such an alehouse as could not have been slept in. The church and clerk are both very old; the former green with damp and disgraced by dirt; arches, and an arcaded gallery of communication around the body, chancel, and side aisles, mark its antiquity, and former splendour. The clerk made us observe a very ancient recumbent figure, which he said 'was of one Grime, who found out this habitation'. A rocky road, (here call'd a ramping road,) of a turnpike turn, led to Laceby, a pretty village, then thro' a variety of cross lanes, (leaving Riby village to our left,) wherein much trouble of driving was required, because our cattle are blundering upon bearing reins, (things not to be endured one moment); in a curricule every bump may upset you, it is a carriage of incessant care; whereas in my old Italian chair, the horse chose his way, I lol'd in the corner, observ'd the country, and had my chat; now in the curricule it is an eternal looking to helm, & sail.

At early noon, we came to Gt Limbe, near to which Mr Pelham in his grounds is erecting a mausoleum, (a little Ratcliffe library) of which Mr Wyatt, the famous architect gives the plan, and directs the execution. Below it, for the sake of contrast, and miserable comparison stands, (for the reception of the living,) an alehouse so bad, as not even to afford cheese! When I possess domains, old, foolish, happy thought, those who live under by protection shall taste happiness, ere the dead shall lodge in grand repertories.

July 13th. The Colonel is not so well form'd for a traveller as I am; he moves in state; trunks laden with dressing apparatus, with snuff, with books, from Shakespeare down to a Court calendar! He is violently offended by all smells; 'Don't you smell the tobacco?' 'Yes, a little.'

In an early edition of this play Mrs Inchbald has some introductory remarks in which she says that it is considered by every critic as the very best of all the author's numerous and successful productions. 'In this drama', she writes, 'are comprised Tragedy, Comedy, Opera and some degree of farce, yet so happily is the variety blended that one scene never diminishes the interest of another, but they all combine to produce a most valuable composition.' Modern opinion would probably endorse the eighteenth-century opinion of Lord Torrington in the Diary—the first act goes with a swing, the second act is delightful, but the third act seems weak and inadequate. A printed edition came out in Dublin in 1792, but the first authorised issue of the play did not appear till 1808.

THE YARBURGH PEDIGREE

THERE are degrees of iniquity in the methods of the pedigree-maker. One of them may assert an affiliation which is nothing but a guess of his own; another may tamper with the evidence or even forge a document to prove an alleged descent; a third may invent an entire pedigree, lock, stock, and barrel. But this last is a dangerous game and most dangerous of all when there is mention of facts or dates, or worse still, of records. They give, no doubt, vraisemblance to a tale, but the cautious artist should eschew them rigidly, and as a matter of fact he usually did.

Mr. Freeman, who dealt with Burke's Peerage in such merciless fashion,¹ insisted that a mere glance at Domesday was enough to blow to pieces some of the fictions it contained. And it is to the Domesday Book that I must refer in the Yarburgh case.

The statement under 'Deramore' in Burke's Peerage, as to the origin of the Yarburghs, is as follows:

The family of Yarburgh, is one of great antiquity, and can trace an authenticated (sic) male succession, from the time of the Norman Conquest. At that period, Eustachius de Yarburgh was Lord of Yarburgh, co. Lincoln, which manor, together with the patronage of the living, still remains vested in his representative, the present Lord Deramore. . . .

Edmund Yarburgh, . . . son of Francis Yarburgh, sergeant-at-law, and the lineal descendant of Eustachius de Yarburgh, lord of Yarburgh, temp. Conquestoris, etc., etc.

The statement, we see, is quite definite and the descent 'authenticated.' Moreover, if words have any meaning, it is disingly implied that the manor of Yarburgh has descended from 'Eustachius' to 'his representative the present Lord Deramore.' Infinitely rare as is a proved descent, in the male line, from the Conqueror's day, the continuous tenure of a manor is a thing rarer still, but such tenure would give the most convincing proof of the descent.

When, however, we turn to Domesday, there is no 'Eustachius de Yarburgh' to be found: Yarborough (Gereburg), which is assessed at 2½ carucates and 1½ bovates, appears only as an appendage of the royal manor of Gayton. We are reminded of Freeman's fierce attack on Sir Bernard Burke and his Peerage:

The tale is sheer invention, it is mere falsehood, which might at any time be confronted by the simple process of turning to Domesday. . . . When the pedigree was invented, Domesday was still doubtless in manuscript, but is it possible that there is no copy of those precious volumes in the library of Ulster King-at-Arms?²

But let us investigate for ourselves the manorial descent of Yarborough. About a generation after Domesday, we have what is known as the Lindsey survey. In this survey, Yarborough (Yerbure) appears with the same assessment (expressed as 2 carucates and 5½ bovates) but the great soke of Gayton-le-Wold, of which it formed part, is now in the hands of the Count of Brittany. Passing to the reign of Henry III, we find that Yarborough (Yerdeburgh) was held in 1242-3 jointly with its neighbour, Grimblethorpe, of the Honour of Richmond (representing the Count of Brittany), as half a knight's fee, by Richard, son of John, and Alan, son of Walter, together.³ Some sixty years later, 1303, we find this half fee split into two quarters, one of them held by Philip Fraunke, the other by the Prior of Alvingham.⁴ By 1428, Philip's quarter, after being held by Robert Darcy, was in the hands of Patrick Skipwith⁵ (less a third of it, held by John Skipwith's widow). The Yarburghs have not yet appeared upon the scene.⁶ But when we turn to the concocted pedigree, we find Yarburghs from the Conquest, all of them marrying, of course, into the best families. From Eustachius de Yarburgh, in 1066, it took four generations to reach the days of Stephen (1135-1154), and their wives were daughters of 'Sir Lambert Munby,' of 'Arthur Ormsby, Esq.,' of 'Sir Ralph Humberston, knt.,' and of 'Sir William Staine.'⁷ I need hardly add that all these marriages are fiction. After Stephen, the pace slackened; it took indeed but three generations to reach the reign of Richard II (1377-1399), when Richard de Yarburgh 'flourished.'⁸ Three generations later we have another Richard de Yarburgh, 'Lord of the manors of Yarburgh and Kelstern,' who may probably be identified with that Richard Yarburgh of Yarborough, gentleman, who was a feoffee of four different properties in 1431;⁹ though he is not entered as the owner of any. As to the manor of Kelstern, its true history is known. It passed from the Missendens of Great Missenden to John de Iwardby (or Ewerby), who married their heiress and who was holding the manor in 1431.¹⁰ From him it descended to their grandson, John Iwardby, who died in 1485,¹¹ and whose youngest daughter and co-heir brought it to her husband, Sir Thomas Clifford, and died seised of it in 1558.¹² It is therefore quite untrue that Richard Yarburgh, or his descendant, Charles Yarburgh, who died in 1544, were as alleged, lords of the manor.¹³ Richard 'Yerborowe' appears to have had a small holding in Kelstern in or about the year 1485,¹⁴ and Charles was buried in its church.

Family Origins

A John 'Zerburgh de Zerburgh' was a juror for an inquest taken at Louth in 1401-2 for the South Riding of Lindsey,¹⁵ but those among whom he is found do not appear to have been land owners, and the manor of Yarburgh, we know, was then in other hands. It is significant, however, that he does not appear in the pedigree, for in his case a record proves both his existence and his date.

It looks to me as if here again we had to do with the usual Elizabethan pedigree, and if so, it may have been compiled for 'Francis Yarburgh, Esq., of Northampton, serjeant-at-law anno 37 Elizabeth,' who founded the Yorkshire line, or for his father, Edmund. It appears, if the transcript can be trusted, as early as 1562 in the Visitation of Lincolnshire made in that year.¹⁶ dates and we find but one (to Henry III) in all this precious production. Yet our herald's knowledge enables him to supply, in each generation, the names of the sons and of the daughters, together with the names and the arms of the families into which they married—even in those early days, when family arms were unknown. Nor does his invention cease when the true pedigree begins. It is not till we reach the Robert Mauleverer who was still living in 20 Henry VI, (1441-2) and whose son married the Colville heiress, that we can connect the pedigrees. For the early stages of the true one were too humble for our herald; he substituted men of knightly rank, for whom he selected wives from ancient Yorkshire houses.

Bad enough was the imaginary pedigree that traced the Yarlboroughs to the Conquest, and found their patriarch ensconced in the folios of Domesday Book. But for sheer cold-blooded fiction, for persistent and elaborate inventions, with nothing to suggest it, this pedigree, efficiently sealed as it was by Lancaster Herald, would be difficult to beat. There were, of course, heralds and heralds, and it must not be said that I treat them all as tarred with the same brush. One of the most amusing concoctions so far as imaginary brides are concerned is that which is printed in Joseph Foster's Yorkshire Visitations, 1584-5 and 1612, as that of Clervaux. But owing to his tiresome system of combining pedigrees from different sources, it is difficult to say whether it is taken from the 1612 Visitation or who is responsible for it. For we must always remember the College of Arms naturally disclaims responsibility for those Visitations which are found in the British Museum. Still, whoever may have been their 'onlie begetter,' the names are too good to be omitted. The daughter-in-law of the Conqueror's companion, 'Sir Hamon Clervaux,' has, alas, no Christian name, but she was the daughter of 'Jordan Busby,' whose arms are duly given. Subsequent brides of the house of Clervaux bore, we find, the delightful names of 'Amaretta,' 'Oswalda,' 'Timothea,' 'Herodia,' and 'Janathela.'

The Mauleverer Concoction and Others

Hitherto, I believe that modern concoction, the notorious Coulthart pedigree, has been considered to bear the palm for invention. In his article 'The bonny House of Coulthart,'⁸ Mr. Oswald Barron, with his merry pen has once more laughed it to scorn. 'Deriving in uninterrupted male succession from the era of Julius Agricola,' the Coultharts derived their origin from 'Coulthartus, a Roman lieutenant, who fought under Julius Agricola at the foot of the Grampian mountains.' It may fairly be said that this pedigree has its pendant in one which, if it does not extend to quite such a remote period, provides us at least in full detail with an 'uninterrupted male succession' from the first century of the Christian era.

William Mauleverer, who signed their true pedigree in 1584, was the genealogist of the family; but it would have been extraordinary indeed had he escaped the temptations of his age. His waverings have their interest. In 1581, at the age of twenty-four, he prefixes some verses to the well-known fiction, which generally passes as the pedigree of Mauleverer. In 1584, he signs the true pedigree in the Visitation of Yorkshire. The fictitious pedigree is in fact brought down to 1587, and in 1591, it is emblazoned on vellum, certified 'per me, Lancaster Herald at Arms' and sealed with that unscrupulous herald's coat. In 1601, at the age of forty-five, Mauleverer reverts to the truth and elaborates with proofs in extenso for every generation 'my pettie-gree collected and contrived out of myne ancient and newe evidences.' It had been well had the Elizabethan heralds' contrivances been triumphantly refuted by every family in the same way. From the entry of 1584 it would seem that Mauleverer rather amused himself with the tempter's suggestions than adopted them against the evidence of his own cartulary.⁹

BRITISH RECORD SOCIETY - THE INDEX LIBRARY
 Calendars of Lincoln Wills - Vol II
 Edited by C. W. Foster, M.A., F.S.A.
 PROVISIONAL INTRODUCTION.

CALENDAR No. III.

Wills proved in the Consistory Court of Lincoln,
 1506-1600.

This series contains some thirty-two thousand sixteenth-century wills, which were proved in the Consistory Court of the Bishop of Lincoln, the Court of the Commissary of the Bishop within the Archdeaconry of Lincoln, and the Court of the Archdeacon of Lincoln within his Archdeaconry. The records of these three Courts have not been preserved separately. The references in this calendar, which give the approximate date of probate, are to the Books deposited in the Lincoln District Registry of the Court of Probate. In the following instances the titles of the Books have been shortened in the Calendar:—

1506, etc.	stands for	1506 and subsequent years.
1534, etc.	"	1534 and divers subsequent years.
1545-6, etc., ii.	"	1545 and 1546 and others, Book ii. (This book contains some wills proved in 1549 and 1560.)
Var.	"	Various years.
1566, etc.	"	Divers years bound in a Book marked '1566.'

The roman numerals refer to the several volumes into which some of the Books are divided.

The Book marked "1595, Book i" is said to be missing.

It should be mentioned that Calendar No. III has been prepared from the manuscript calendars in modern handwriting in the Lincoln District Registry, but in cases of doubtful readings or other obscurities the Books have been carefully referred to.

The Rev. Canon A. R. Maddison, F.S.A., has printed two volumes of abstracts of "Lincolnshire Wills,"* most of which are registered in the Consistory Court. The first series of these abstracts covers the same period as this calendar, and contains, together with other wills, most of the wills of gentle families recorded in this Court. The second series extends from 1600 to 1617. An asterisk has been placed in the calendar against the wills which appear in Canon Maddison's first volume.

* First Series, A.D. 1500-1600 (Lincoln); James Williamson, 1882. Second Series, A.D. 1600-1617 (same publisher, 1891).

Courts of Probate at Lincoln.

The following is a complete list of the Wills and Administrations at Lincoln, so far as can be ascertained. Except where it is stated otherwise, the records are deposited in the District Probate Registry in the Exchange Gateway at Lincoln.

- I. Wills and Administrations recorded in the Episcopal Registers of the Ancient Diocese of Lincoln, deposited in the Alnwick Tower of the Old Palace at Lincoln. These extend from 1320 to 1547, and are calendared in this volume. See pp. vi, vii.
- II. Miscellaneous Wills in the Alnwick Tower, dating 1489. The wills prior to 1600 are calendared in this volume. See pp. vii, viii.
- III. The Consistory Court of the Bishop, with which are incorporated the Court of the Commissary of the Bishop within the Archdeaconry of Lincoln, and the Court of the Archdeacon of Lincoln within his Archdeaconry. The wills commence in 1506, and continue till 1858, when the Lincoln District Registry of the Probate Division of the H. M. High Court of Justice was established. There are no wills from 1653 to 1659 inclusive. The wills from 1506 to 1600 are calendared in the present volume, and those from 1601 to 1652 are in course of preparation for a second volume, of which it is intended to issue an instalment next year. The administration bonds commence about 1550, but the manuscript calendar only extends from 1700 to 1838. There are also three books of wills marked "A" (1672-1676), "B" (1638-1639), and "C" (1700-1730), with a separate manuscript calendar.
- IV. The Commissary Court of the Bishop of Lincoln within the Archdeaconry of Stow and the Court of the Archdeacon of Stow within his Archdeaconry, which comprised the wapentakes of Manlake, Aslockhoe, Corringham, Well, and Lawres. The wills extend from 1530 to 1834, and the administrations from 1582 to 1829, with, however, almost a blank from 1630 to 1660.
- V. The Court of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, the jurisdiction of which extended over the parishes of St. Margaret and St. Mary Magdalen in the Close of Lincoln; St. Nicholas and St. John in the City of Lincoln; Asgarby, Bishnook, St. Gabriel, North and South Carlton, Dunholme, Dalby, Friesthorpe, Glentham, Hainton, North Kelsey, Melton Ross, Searby, Scamblesby, Scredington, Skillington, Southrey, Strabby, Thurlby, Welton, Wellingore, all in the County of Lincoln; together with a few wills of persons dying within the Parishes of the Prebendaries of Lincoln. A few early CEs from 1271 to 1534 are in the Muniment Room of the Dean and Chapter, and the wills and administrations from 1534 to 1834 are in the District

Probate Registry, where there is a good manuscript calendar. Mr. Gibbons has printed part of a calendar of these wills and administrations from 1534 to 1780, including the letters A to R, in his "Notes on the Visitation of Lincolnshire, 1634" (Williamson: Lincoln, 1898).

- VI. Biggleswade, co. Bedford, Prebendal Court, wills and administrations from 1639 to 1742. Other wills proved in this Court are deposited at Northampton. (See Marshall's "Ancient Courts of Probate," p. 5.)
- VII. Bishop's Norton, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction over the parish of Bishop's Norton and the town of Atterby; wills and administrations from 1613 to 1814.
- VIII. Caistor, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction over the parishes of Caistor and Cley and the town of Halton le Moor; wills and administrations from 1636 to 1833. The calendar of this Court has been printed in the "Northern Genealogist," vol. i (1895), pp. 47-48.
- IX. Corringham, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, wills and administrations from 1632 to 1833.
- X. Duddington, co. Northampton, Peculiar Court, wills and administrations from 1740 to 1830.
- XI. Empingham, co. Rutland, Peculiar Court, wills and administrations from 1669 to 1744. Other wills proved in this Court are deposited at Peterborough (Marshall's "Ancient Courts of Probate," p. 18).
- XII. Gretton, co. Rutland, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction extending over the parishes of Gretton and Duddington; wills and administrations from 1684 to 1832. There is also a small bundle of Gretton, Duddington, and Liddington wills in the District Registry.
- XIII. Heydour with Walton, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction extending over the parish of Heydour and the towns of Kelby and Culverthorpe; wills and administrations from 1669 to 1836.
- XIV. Kirkstead, co. Lincoln, Manorial Court, with jurisdiction extending over Kirkstead, Kirkby on Haine, Mearbooth, Tattershall, Tattershall Thorpe, and Woodhall. The wills, which are said to commence in 1752 and end before 1800, have not yet been found at Lincoln, and enquiries at Horncastle, etc., have met with no success.
- XV. Kirton in Lindsey, co. Lincoln, Peculiar Court, wills and administrations from 1535 to 1834.
- XVI. Louth, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction extending over Louth; wills and administrations from 1659 to 1839, of which a calendar has been printed by Mr. Gibbons in the "Northern Genealogist," vol. i (1895), pp. 85-87 and 162-164, and vol. ii (1896), pp. 172-175. Dr. Marshall says that there are ten wills belonging to this Court, between 1612 and 1725, in the Registry of the Bishop and Dean and Chapter of Lincoln ("Ancient Courts of Probate," p. 8).

- XXII. Nossington, co. Rutland, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction extending over Nossington, Yarwell, Apethorpe, and Woodnewton; wills and administrations from 1660 to 1788. There are other wills, proved in this Court, deposited at Peterborough.
- XXIII. New Sir. Col. co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, wills and administrations from 1610 to 1834. According to Dr. Marshall, some of the wills belonging to this Court are in the Muniment Room of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln.
- XXIV. Stow in Lindsey, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction extending over the parish of Stow and the towns of Stanton and Normantz by Stow; wills and administrations from 1610 to 1833.
- XXV. Probate and Administration Act Books, commencing about 1568, in four portfolios and several volumes in the Alnwick Tower.
- XXVI. Lincoln City Wills of the fourteenth century in the Minister Library.
- XXVII. A small bundle of Bedfordshire, Buckinghamshire, Hertfordshire, Huntingdonshire, and Northamptonshire wills, belonging for the most part to the earlier half of the seventeenth century.

I desire to acknowledge my indebtedness to the kindness of Mrs. Tempest of Broughton, who has given me valuable assistance in identifying some of the places in Calendar No. I, and to F. A. Blaydes, Esq., F.S.A., who revised the Bedfordshire entries in the same Calendar.

The thanks of the British Record Society and of the public are due to the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Lincoln for permission to print calendars of the wills in the Alnwick Tower; to the Right Hon. Sir Francis H. Jeune, K.C.B., who, as President of the Probate Division of the High Court of Justice, has allowed the calendars in the Lincoln District Registry to be copied for this volume; to John Swan, Esq., Registrar at Lincoln, for his courtesy in allowing arrangements to be made for having the calendars copied; to W. W. Smith, Esq., Secretary to the Bishop of Lincoln; and to the clerks in the District Probate Registry.

Ref. 979.2

INTRODUCTION.

AN apology is due to the subscribers for the length of time that they have been kept waiting for the completion of this volume. The delay, however, has its compensation. It was only under pressure that I consented to edit this second volume, for, while I could not shut my eyes to the fact that there were many errors and omissions in the official manuscript calendar from which it was prepared, I could not find time to make a new calendar from the wills themselves. When, however, pages 1-96 had been printed, Mr. J. S. Smith, one of the clerks in the District Probate Registry, collated the official calendar with the volumes of wills, and to his skill and patient labour those who use this calendar are very deeply indebted.

From pages 97 to the end the results of Mr. Smith's work are incorporated in the text, and the appendix (pages 215-227), which is distressingly lengthy, contains the corrections which ought to be made in the text of pages 1-96. The appendix has been put into a form which will enable readers to use it, with as little inconvenience as may be, side by side with the text.

During the last few years the records of the Bishop of Lincoln have been in process of arrangement, and among them a great number of testamentary documents have been found and transferred to the District Probate Registry. These, in so far as they relate to the period from 1600 to 1652, have been included in this volume, and have helped to swell the appendix.

An index of persons residing outside the county of Lincoln has been added to the volume, and the places have, so far as possible, been identified, and given in this index under their modern names.

My thanks are due to E. A. Fry, Esq., to whom those interested in historical research are deeply indebted, for cutting up and arranging the entries in alphabetical order; to Gordon L. Simpson, Esq., Registrar of the Lincoln District Probate Registry, for his interest and assistance in the work; and to Mr. J. S. Smith for help which has greatly added to the value of this calendar.

ALVINGHAM

This friendly village lies three and a half miles to the north-east of Louth and is famous for having two churches standing in one church yard. As if this wasn't unusual enough the entrance to this religious phenomenon is via a farmyard which stands on the site of an ancient monastery and is named "The Abbey". The two churches lie in very close proximity to each other. St. Mary's was given to the village of Cockerington in the 12th century after their own church had fallen into ruin. St. Adelwold's is the parish church of Alvingham but had until the early 1900s been closed for over a century. Restoration work was paid for by Armstrong Yarburgh M.P. who died in 1916. He left a large cash sum for this mammoth task which was finally completed in 1933.

Alvingham also enumerates among its attractions a working water mill, lovingly restored by Phil Davies who opened it to the general public.

The local pottery is also open to the public who can watch the potter at his craft, from the inception of the clay to the wheel through to the putting on of handles and the finishing coat of glaze.

Yet another craft practised in this attractive village is that of the blacksmith where the visitor can admire the ancient art and listen to 'ancient' tales.

First mentioned in the Domesday survey, Alvingham is still a flourishing community which offers a warm welcome to the visitor in search of traditional Lincolnshire life.

To help you know when your Annual Dues are due to the Society watch the first line on the mailing labels affixed to copies of the Quarterly and News 'N' Notes. The first number is your membership code number. The second one is the expiration date for your membership. For example, 0489 indicates your dues are payable by the end of April 1989.

We will continue to send you membership reminders 4-5 weeks before your membership expires. Keep paid to date so you won't miss any of our publications.

TRIP TO GERMANY

President David L. Meyer has received word of a trip to Schleswig-Holstein, Denmark, Hamburg and East/West Berlin during the period June 11-25, 1989.

English speaking lecturers, receptions with politicians and a lot of side tours are on the agenda not only to introduce you to their history but also the area, regarded by South Germans as a most beautiful recreation place.

Dr. La Vern J. Rippley, St. Olaf College, Northfield, Mn. 55057 is handling the details.

"The Madison County Historical Book" (address 300 Court Square, Fredericktown, Mo. 63645) contains the history of Madison County, Mo., its towns and early and present day families. Approx. 500 pages it sells for $43.50 ppd.

Pioneer families of St. Louis, Jefferson and Franklin counties are featured in a book titled "Simerly Simerly Zimerly Zimmerle Zimmerli". Besides these names the book touches family histories with surnames Lightle, Durtschi, Walton, Kofahl, Collins, Deschamp and DeBord to name a few. Events responsible for causing the early settlers to leave their homes in North East Tennessee and start anew in Missouri are recalled in story form. The "Bridge Burners" of the Civil War is the subject of one story.

precedence in Louis XIV's time, and the consequent rivalries sometimes led to allegations of forgery.

Of wider scope were the works of Reinerus Reineck, Hieronymus Hennings and Elias Reusner in the 16th century, of Nicolaus terhusius, Jacob Wilhelm Imhoff, Philipp Jakob Spener and Georg Lohmeier in the 17th and of Johann Hübner and Johann Christoph Gutterer in the 18th. The Almanach de Gotha, first published in 1763, continued as an annual providing genealogical information on sovereign, princely and ducal families till 1944.

Modern Genealogical Method.—Genealogy, like every other branch of knowledge, must now submit itself to recognized scientific methods and not merely discard the fables of the past but also frankly admit where descents hitherto accepted can no longer be satisfactorily proved. Tradition alone is not valid. Thus the descent of the Belgian princely family of Cröy from Adam (through Attila and Noah); of the French house of Lévis from Levi, son of Jacob; of the Wake baronets from Hereward the Wake; of the Feildings, earls of Denbigh, from the Habsburgs; of the Fitzgeralds, dukes of Leinster, from the Florentine Gherardini; of the Dillons from the Breton house of Léon; and of the numerous Welsh families from David, can no longer be maintained. Likewise numerous families formerly claiming descent from supposed companions in arms of William the Conqueror have had to revise their pedigrees drastically; the number of those whose ancestors' presence at the battle of Hastings can be authenticated does not amount to more than 20.

It became the special task of a school of modern genealogists led by J. H. Round (1854–1928) to separate legend from fact. Mere possession of a name similar to some well-known person or family does not of itself imply consanguinity. Each pedigree has to be carefully scrutinized and each link carefully attested.

For the beginner anxious to construct his own family tree the best method is to begin with himself and work back as far as he can. First he can examine family papers, letters, deeds, journals, diaries and even photographs, study the family Bible where it exists and make himself acquainted with any family traditions (these traditions may suggest from which part of the country his family originally came, but are not conclusive evidence in themselves). Next he must pass from private to public records, both church and state. The modern techniques of the photostat and the microfilm obviate the need for laborious transcription, and duplicates produced by these methods are invaluable if the originals are destroyed.

Records and Publications in Great Britain.—The Registration act of 1836 made it compulsory in England and Wales to register births, marriages and deaths (as from July 1, 1837) and provided a central repository where certificates could be consulted. This is the general register office at Somerset house in London. For Scotland, where registration did not become obligatory till 1855, the records are at Edinburgh; for Ireland, where it was not adopted till 1864, at Dublin. Additional information can often be obtained by consulting the census returns, made every ten years (except for the year 1941) since 1801. The first three are purely statistical, but that of 1841, by giving the person's age, and that of 1851, by also giving the place of birth as well as the place of residence, have often helped to locate a family that may have moved from its original domicile. These are both at the public record office. Censuses, however, which are less than 100 years old are regarded as confidential, stored at Somerset house and not open to public inspection.

For the centuries before the 19th, recourse to the parish registers is essential. In 1538 Thomas Cromwell made it compulsory for the parish priest to keep registers of baptisms, marriages and burials, and these are the main source of genealogical information to bridge the gulf between 1538 and 1837. These records are sometimes defective (especially during the period of the Commonwealth) and some have been destroyed by civil disturbance or in war, while some have simply vanished. Also they are not stored in one central repository but have to be consulted in the parishes concerned unless they have been copied out. The Society of Genealogists, however, possesses many transcripts of these registers and has also published a national index of copies. Moreover, as the Tudor clergy were not always punctilious or systematic in keeping their records, they were ordered (in 1597 and 1603) to send copies of their registers to the registrar of the diocese in which their parish was; and these "bishops' transcripts," still in the keeping of the diocesan registrars, form a valuable supplement to the registers themselves.

In the 17th and 18th centuries, when dissent became permanently organized outside the confines of the established church, records began to be kept by nonconformist ministers. Most of these, some dating back to 1642, are in the custody of the registrar general. There are also duplicates of the fine records kept by the Quakers from 1655 in the library at Friends' house, Euston Road, London. The Huguenot chapels kept their own records (available at Somerset house) and the Huguenot society has published many of their pedigrees. The Roman Catholics (there is an excellent Catholic Record society) and the Jews (who had been expelled from England in 1290 but who were readmitted during the Commonwealth) also preserved their own records.

The Church of England possesses two further stores of genealogical data of vital importance—marriage licences and wills. Before 1837 many well-to-do people preferred to be married by licence rather than after banns. These licences, usually obtained from the bishop of the diocese or from the vicar-general of the archbishop of Canterbury, remain in the custody of the church and are kept by the diocesan registries. Some have been published by the Harleian society and some by the British Record society.

Since the establishment of the court of probate in 1858 wills have been the exclusive concern of the state and can be consulted at the principal probate registry at Somerset house. Before that they came under the jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical courts where the testator died or held property. If he held property in more than one ecclesiastical jurisdiction, then his will was dealt with by the prerogative courts of Canterbury or York.

State records can be consulted at the public record office in Chancery lane, London. There are not only historic documents such as the Domesday Book (c. 1086–87) and Magna Carta (1215) but also all the exchequer rolls (from 1152), the chancery records (from 1199), the patent rolls, the manor court rolls, the close rolls, the fleet of fines (1190–1833), inquisitions, post mortems, etc. They are invaluable, especially for the medieval period, as most families were involved in litigation at some time or other. For many families the heraldic visitations carried out from 1530–1683 give interesting details, but they have to be regarded with reserve as the pedigrees were supplied by the families themselves and were often, despite obvious fabrications, uncritically accepted. They are kept at the College of Arms (established by royal charter in 1484), but many have been printed by the Harleian society.

Manuscript collections of genealogies extend back to the 15th and 16th centuries—to the days of William Worcester (d. 1482) and John Rous (d. 1491) and to the Elizabethan heralds like William Camden (1551–1623), who helped to found the first society of antiquaries (c. 1586). These and those of later centuries may be found in the College of Arms, in the Bodleian library or in the British museum. Record societies such as the Harleian (founded 1869), the British Record Society (founded 1888) and the Society of Genealogists (founded 1911) also possess manuscripts and collections of original documents.

Miscellaneous information can also be traced from the registers of schools and universities; from the records of the war office, the admiralty and the India office; and, for humbler folk, through indentures of apprenticeship (both the City of London archives and the Society of Genealogists have many original documents here), from churchwardens' accounts and, finally, from the poor law settlement certificates, the rate books, bastardy bonds, workhouse admissions and vagrancy orders.

Sir William Dugdale, who was perhaps the first English genealogist to quote references for the facts that he gave, produced the first peerage book, The Baronage of England (1675–76). This was followed by Arthur Collins' Peerage of England in 1709 (the prototype of Burke) and by Thomas Wotton's English Baronetage in 1727. John Debrett first issued his Peerage of England, Scotland and Ireland in 1802, and John Burke his Peerage and Baronetage in 1826 (after which he launched many kindred publications, such as the Landed Gentry). The greatest achievement in this field, however, was the Complete Peerage of G.E.C. (G. E. Cokayne), 1st ed., 1887-98, 2nd ed., 1910, with subsequent revisions under V. Gibbs, H. A. Doubleday and G. White.

Information can also be obtained by consulting the magazine of the Society of Genealogists (published since 1925) and such periodicals as The Genealogist (1877-1922) and Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica (1866-1938), as well as the histories of individual families, provided in ever increasing numbers since the 17th century.

United States and Canada.—In the United States, genealogical interest goes back to the early days of British settlement. The class system in the new world was at first as rigid as in the mother country and families were at great pains to preserve records of their descent. Virginia in particular was the cradle of U.S. genealogy, for there the first families of Virginia constituted themselves a planter aristocracy and used armorial bearings. Massachusetts came a good second (the first Historical society was founded there in 1791), while in Maryland the Catholic family of Calvert (created lords of Baltimore in 1625) established a semi-feudal domain. The Puritan middle classes were equally assiduous in maintaining their family records. For humbler emigrants from England, however, there is often some difficulty in tracing ancestors, since the ships' lists, such as that of J. C. Hotten, which covers the period 1600-1700, give only the port from which the emigrant sailed, not the place from which he came.

The break with England added a new interest to U.S. genealogy and made people anxious to establish connection with the heroes of the Revolution—those who had signed the Declaration of Independence, the members of the Boston Tea Party and those who served in the continental forces in 1775-83. Later, with the mass immigration from Europe, genealogical interest once again focused on the old world, still mainly, but no longer exclusively, on Great Britain and Ireland. Census records in the U.S. go back to 1790; and the national archives at Washington are a valuable source of material (e.g., for pension records).

The Daughters of the American Revolution have more than 200,000 names recorded and filed in their archives at Memorial Continental Hall in Washington and publish lineage books. The United States has been rather rich in this type of society, for, besides the Daughters, there are also the Sons and Daughters of the Pilgrims, Sons of Confederate Veterans, the Society of the Cincinnati and the Holland Society of New York.

John Farmer's American Genealogical Register of the First Settlers of New England (1829) was followed in 1860-62 by John Savage's Genealogical Dictionary of the First Settlers of New England.

In 1845, at Boston, the first genealogical society came into being with the title of the New England Historic Genealogical Society. Since Jan. 1847 this society has published a quarterly magazine called the New England Historic and Genealogical Register, usually known simply as The Register. This society has frequently sponsored research in England; much valuable work was done by Col. J. L. Chester (1821-82) and H. F. Waters (1823-1913).

Another important centre of genealogical activity in the U.S. is Utah, where the Mormon community has preserved its records with the same skill and devotion as the Quakers in England. The GENERAL, a high military rank. Army rank usually commands units larger than a regiment or units consisting of more than one armoured division. In many instances, however, a general is a staff officer who does not command troops but who plans their operations. General, lieutenant general and major general are the first three grades of general officers in most armies. In the U.S. air force and marines have a fourth grade of general officer. The highest U.S. army rank, that of general of the United States, was created in 1799, promoted in 1802, and abolished in 1804. There is no record that the rank was ever made, however, and the office ceased to exist. It was re-established especially for Gen. John J. Pershing, who became the only person actually to hold this rank, and died in 1920. The rank of general of the United States was conferred successively on Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, William T. Sherman and Gen. Philip H. Sheridan. The rank of general of the United States ceased to exist with the death of Sherman in 1891. This rank was abolished in 1919. The rank of field marshal in the British and other armies was created during World War II and conferred in 1944 on Gen. Bernard Montgomery, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Gen. George C. Marshall, and in 1950 on Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Following the establishment of the U.S. Air Force, General Arnold's title was changed to that of General of the Air Force. (For equivalent ranks in other countries see INSIGNIA, MILITARY.)

The term general is also included in the titles of offices of high responsibility such as postmaster general and governor general.

GENERAL AGREEMENT ON TRADE (G.A.T.T.): see TARIFFS AND TRADE.

GENERAL STAFF, a military term for a group of officers who assist a commander by performing administrative, planning, supply and co-ordinating functions. The concept emerged in European armies during the 17th century, the first and most successful being the general staff of the Prussian army. The U.S. army created a general staff in 1906, the British army also created a general staff in 1906. In most air forces the counter-terrorist staff came to be known as the air staff.

GENERAL STORE. In the history of the United States, a general store, or country store, was the store that served the pioneer trading post (q.v.) that served the pioneer settlement. Established at a crossroads or in a village, the general store served the immediate community and farmers of the countryside. It carried a wide range of goods, including clothing, housewares and farm equipment.

think they were black.

One wonders what links they are between

Dear Mrs. Rice,

I had a telephone call yesterday from a cousin, Peter Garbrough, who had spoken to you and heard of your Garbrough tour of England.

I thought it better to write rather than telephone and only hope that this reaches you. Explanations over the phone are just too lengthy.

Peter tells me that you are descended from a Richard Garbrough around about 1642. Did he come out from England that year? How was his name spelled? Is anything known about where he came from in England or where he landed in the States? Can you trace your family back to him? It might be possible for me to get some information if I knew some of these details.

My family for centuries has spelled its name with an "e", although that was not always so. It is pronounced "yaz not" "yer". We are English and live in London in Londonshire. The Brown Index has a great many Garbroughs & Garbroughs etc. I don't do know that there are in our family was supposed to have gone out to Virginia in the 1600's but I can't get out how I got that information. Perhaps he is the missing link.

My father emigrated to Canada about 1905, where I was born and lived until 1952 when we moved to the U.S. and lived here till 1985 when we came here. About the 1930's is a little place in Oregon our mail got confused with a local Garbrough. I taught several years at a school in Eugene. Our faculty was a non-called

Dear Neva (Please excuse the spelling, if this is wrong)

I enclose my grandfather's book, which deals mainly with the families into which Yerburchs married. It gets round to the family - p 208! You may find some connecting link. I am descended from O.R.Y (p 249)

When you went to York University you would have seen the crest of the Yerburchs over the entrance. The same as the crest above -

If you have time there is a Yerburch (grandson of Rennie Y (p 247)) who lives at Woodstock Oxford [Beyond, Orchard Field Lane] 0993 811314 who has come back from the U.S.A who would be very interested to hear from you. His brother

My twin brother is Lt Col John Terburgh - High Sheriff of Kent and my younger brother, David, is Vicar of Hinchinhampton where Princess Anne is one of his parishioners. He is a Canon of Gloucester.

I hope your visit will be rewarding. I should be very interested in any photos of oil paintings of your side of family in the past.

With best wishes for your

THE YARBURGHS OF SNAITH AND HESLINGTON

I HAD not intended when I started these notes on the Yerburch family to say much about the early generations or anything about that branch of the Yarburchs of Yarburch, who migrated to Yorkshire (circa 1590-1600). The particular cadet of the original stock who migrated was Edmund Yarburch, who was the second son of Francis Yarburch of Northorp, by his second marriage with Frances, daughter of Leonard Wray. Francis Yarburch was the eldest son of Edmund Yarburch of Lincoln, by his wife Margaret Grantham, daughter of Sir Vincent Grantham, knight: Edmund Yarburch was the third son of Charles Yarburch of Yarburch, by his second wife Elizabeth, daughter of Martyn Newcomen (whose will is quoted hereafter).

This branch of the family, whom we will call for the sake of distinction 'the Yorkshire Yarburchs,' married a succession of heiresses, and soon acquired large estates in the south of Yorkshire, chiefly about Snaith and Cowick. Sir Nicholas Yarburch of Snaith, who was born 1612 and died 1635, apparently bought back the lands of his ancestors at Yarburch, co. Lincoln, but whether he bought them from the then head of his family or from strangers, I am unable to state. He probably bought them from his kinsmen, the Radleys. As is well known, the male line of the Yorkshire Yarburchs became extinct in the year 1852, when the last male representative of the family, Nicholas Edmund Yarburgh, died unmarried. The representation of the family then went to his sister, who married John Greame, Esq., of Sewerby House, co. York, and left issue Yarburgh Greame of Sewerby House, who assumed the name of Yarburgh, and died without issue in 1856, when the representation went to his sister Alicia Maria, who married George Lloyd, Esq., of Stockton Hall, whose family appears to have been for a long time settled in Manchester and the district, and to have been successfully engaged in trade, and who bought considerable estates in Yorkshire: on her death the representation went to her eldest son, George John Lloyd, who assumed the name of Yarburgh. He was born in 1811 and died in 1868, leaving two daughters, the eldest of whom, Mary Elizabeth Yarburgh, married, in 1862, George William Bateson, who (on the death of his brother, the first Lord Deramore) became the second Lord Deramore. Mrs. Bateson de Yarburgh died in 1884, and the representation of the Yorkshire Yarburghs devolved upon her eldest son, Robert Wilfrid de Bateson Yarburgh, the present Lord Deramore.

266 SOME NOTES ON OUR FAMILY HISTORY

We now come to the Cooke-Yarboroughs of Campsall; they have not a drop of Yarburgh blood in their veins, and they are really members of the ancient and honourable family of Cooke of Stretthorpe.

Thomas Yarborough of Campsmount married, in 1718, Joanna, daughter of Tobias Harvey of Wormesley, and had with other issue, who all died before their father, two daughters who survived him:

Anne and Elizabeth, co-heiresses of Campsmount. These two ladies having become the only descendants of Thomas Yarborough, first of Campsall, selected for their heir their first cousin (on the maternal side), George Cooke of Stretthorpe (who was the grandson of Sir George Cooke, third Bart. of Wheatley), whose mother was another of the daughters of Tobias Harvey. They enjoined him to take the name of Yarborough and to bear the arms, for which he obtained the royal permission 15th July 1802. Miss Elizabeth Yarborough died 23rd November 1801, and the present representative of this family is that well-known and highly respected Yorkshireman, George Bryan Cooke Yarborough of Campsmount.

Now as regards our own branch of the family, who as far as I have been able to discover are the only representatives in the male line of the original stock of Yarburgh of Yarburgh, the name having apparently died out, so much so that on looking through the London Directory I have been unable to discover the name of Yarburgh, Yarborough, or Yerburch, except in connection with Lord Deramore's family, the Cooke Yarboroughs, and our own branch of the family. I know that a branch of the family exists at the present time in Virginia. This branch probably emigrated from Boston, but it is not known from whom they are descended, as Hunter says in his South Yorkshire, 'when the simple possession of the name may be received as a proof almost complete of descent from the main stock.' Sir Alfred S. Scott-Gatty considers that it is probable that our ancestor, Richard Yerburch of Over Tynton, was identical with Richard Yerburch who held lands in Cockerington anno 1530: if so, he is probably also identical with Richard who held lands in Edlington 1490—and was probably the son of Thomas of Edlington and Cockerington and Withcall—1455-90, the son of William Yarborough of Yarborough, who on the visitation of 1562 for Lincolnshire is described as William Yarborough (son of John, son of William, son of Richard) who married Isabel, daughter and heir of Sir John Billing, knight. Their pedigree is well worth studying, as it proves conclusively that the Yorkshire Yarburchs are only, like ourselves, cadets of the main stock.

I now pass on to give a very full account of the family, which practically exhausts all the branches of the family which at the present time are known to exist.

I have already pointed out that in Tudor times, the gentry of Lincolnshire were for the most part in very poor circumstances and were hardly pressed to keep up their position; and I have shown that Charles Yarburch of Yarburch was no exception to the rule. In order that you may be able to grasp the rise and progress of this branch of the family it will be necessary for you to refer to the Chart Pedigree, and I shall commence with the early descendants of that family, about whom I shall not have much to say till I come to Charles Yarburch of Yarburch.

This book has been reprinted for Heslington Village Trust as part of a campaign to save common lands in England and Wales.

A visit to Tillmire Common in 1845 is described on pages 12 and 13 by one who enjoyed that "spacious plain" as we still can today. This may soon not be possible. The Trustees of the Halifax Estate (successors to Renty Yarbrough to whom the poem is dedicated) are now attempting to have the Tillmire removed from the register of common land, drained and put under the plough. Many other commons throughout the country are in danger from this modern form of enclosure.

The name Tillmire comes from the Old English for Tila's Marsh. Records of common rights go back to 1180 and it is likely that this wetland pasture has been summer grazing ever since.

HENRY YARBURGH, Esq.

Sir,

AS the rich owner of those romantic and beautiful possessions, to which the various subjects in this little rural Poem allude, no one claims a prior right to my respect than yourself: permit me to say, that whilst I admire your character as a Gentleman, in private retirement, I no less esteem your benevolence, as a Christian, to the poor of Heslington, and of which an ESTABLISHMENT for their relief and comfort is a standing memorial.  PREFACE.

GENTLE READER,

IT probably may be looked upon as a great piece of presumption in me, to pretend or attempt to write a Rural Poem, which requires so much of the picturesque and beautiful to describe; for I own I am not a Burns. As I have endeavoured to adhere to nature and truth, as near, in my description of the adjacent Neighbourhood of HESLINGTON, as I possibly could, and as truth will always be welcome to me, when, or from whence soever it comes, so I flatter myself, no other apology will be required. When I look over the respectable list of SUBSCRIBERS who have honoured me with their names and their notice, I must say, I shall be happy if my work meets their united approbation; and from the world, only so much merit or demerit as it may candidly and openly deserve. I do assure each worthy friend of mine, (and truly pleased I am to find so many,) that the sole intention for my undertaking so arduous a task, was to contribute to their amusement, as well as to reap some small emolument and gratification, from the respect which they have so generously evinced in my behalf. Ingratitude shall never reproach my heart with insensibility; nor shall a sense of their past goodness and liberality ever be obliterated from my memory.

I now beg leave to assure my worthy SUBSCRIBERS, that, if they receive pleasure from my weak efforts to contribute to their solace and amusement, it will be the happiest period of my life to know and experience their flattering and permanent friendship.

With the deepest sense of respect and esteem, I acknowledge myself their

HESLINGTON.

HESLINGTON, sweet spot, my Muse shall sing,
Adorn'd with all the charms of Spring.
'Tis thine to cheer the rural mind,
Where dwells Contentment's lot refin'd;
To teach the moral sense to know,
What man most covets here below ;
And where to fix his anxious soul,
Within due reason's wise controul.

When every inward tumult cease,
And all within is calm and peace,
'Tis then, when earthly beauties charm,
And all their objects fondly warm
The busy mind of curious man,
To dive into Creation's plan.

How oft at noon-time do I rove,
Thro' each sequester'd shady grove,

B

Where stand the strong majestic trees,
Which kiss each other with the breeze,
Whilst branch with branch entangl'd twine,
To make the union seem divine.

What distant views delight the eye
From the RETREAT, 'twixt earth and sky!
What towers, what steeples, in the road,
Which lead to each man's rich abode!
Whilst all around we objects trace,
That give to roving fancy grace.

(At this RETREAT, the maniac's mind
Does every kind attention find,
To cheer the sorrows of the day,
And drive its pensive griefs away.
Here misery meets some friendly arm
To guide its steps, and adds a charm
To sooth the aching of the heart,
Which human kindness can impart.)

But why should not fair fancy roam,
That has a peaceful cottage—home?
Why not amidst such scenes be gay,
When rural pleasure points the way;
When harmless joys there dance around,
On cowslip beds or on the ground,

Which mildly tinge the cares of life,
And banish far domestic strife?

Then, hail! sweet lawns, inbowering shades,
The cool retreat of nut brown maids;
Of rustic youth's inur'd to toil,
Upon whose face content does smile,
With all the joys of wedded love,
Soft emblems of the saints above,
Who live and reign triumphant high,
With that All Powerful Deity,
Who bids the enraptur'd poets raise
Their voice, and chaunt his heav'nly praise.

And thou, kind YARBURGH, friend of man,
Whose ancient SEAT shows nature's plan:
By THEE the poor and peasant's cot,
Is happier made, tho' hard his lot!
No greedy wealth, no sordid gain,
His hands or conscience ever stain!
By THEE relens'd from woe or want,
His life is blest, tho' means are scant,
And thus secure, he finds from THEE,
To glad his days—blest CHARITY!

May gratitude then tell the tale,
As whistling thro' the chesnut vale

 Grateful Acknowledgments to the Deity.

Observe ; and in his choice and will
Discern great judgment, power, and skill.

Should not then this, weak man, to thee
A prudent cautious lesson be :
And make thee bless the holy name
Of Him who did such wonders frame ?

Lo, every prospect round this place,
By art or nature form'd with grace,
Must fill the wide capacious soul,
(As round the orb'd eye-balls roll)
With never-ceasing love and awe,
From whence an inference we draw,
That God is just ! and man is vain,
To view his works and then complain.

Great God Eternal, life of all !
By whom we stand, by whom we fall :
To thy decrees 'tis meet we bend
The knee, for thou art sorrow's friend !
Then spare us sinking, fill with joy
The Paupers' hut ; do not destroy,
But add to all his troubles here
Soft pity's balm, to dry the tear.
For once, O make him blest at least,
And grace with hope his humble feast !

 The Pastimes at Hedlington Fenat.

(With spirits meek, his heart elate,)
And bless him in his humble state ;
That we may hear him sing or say,
“ With me, O every month is MAY !”

Now let us to the pastime haste,
When (arm claspt round the tender waist)
The conscious blushing female sees
Her swain peep thro' the whisp'ring trees,
With ruddy face ; behold each blush
That creeps, half smother'd from the bush ;
Or panting, see the heartfelt sigh
That steals away, she knows not why,
Yet tells a tale, a tale as true
As turtles when they bill and coo.

Presented next with cheesecakes sweet,
Which oft invite the lips to eat ;
Or tarts, which clownish pockets fill,
To mark the maiden's right good will.
She often thro' the crowd will steal
A thought, the tongue dare not reveal,
And glowing warm whilst closely prest,
Betrays the joys within her breast.

He, on his part, with simp'ring face,
Strips, cool to run the lengthen'd race ;

 Poverty relieved by generous Actions.

He trudges, with his infant race,
 With merry song and gladsome pace,
 How thy kind HAND and HEART bestow'd
 The star that on his forehead glow'd,
 Which made his daily labour light,
 And soft his bed throughout the night!

Yes, gen'rous man! sure praise is due,
 Since poverty is caus'd, by you,
 To smile around the poor man's fire,
 And in him grateful thoughts inspire.
 So may you live, live long indeed,
 To help the poor in time of need.

Tho' small, yet snug, a dwelling stands,*
 Rais'd up by wise industrious hands,
 Whose owner lives and now does share
 The fruit of prudent well-earn'd care:
 Whilst mutual concord firmly blend,
 The parent, husband, and the friend.
 Such is the man—who weary grown,
 Of bustle, has a spot his own;
 And who with truth his God can praise,
 For plenty gain'd by honest ways.

Look from the top of yon high hill,
 (The wand'ring eye will not stand still,)

* Mr. Stabler's House and Bleach Fields.

 The Vailles near Heslington Field.

What various noble views we find
 For contemplation, in the mind;
 Which nature, from her massy mould,
 Does to the musing mind unfold!

How do the beauteous vales below,
 GOD's workmanship divinely show:
 And every plant around we see,
 Speak praise, thro' vast Eternity;
 Whilst rocks on rocks, amidst the deep,
 Will suffer not the mind to sleep;
 But eager pushes on the eye,
 More rising beauties to espy,
 'Till lost in wonder, joy, and fear,
 We trembling gaze from year to year;
 Till death our wandering senses pall,
 The curtain drops and hides them all.

I view with admiration's pride
 The hollies standing side by side;
 The violets blue, the woodbine green,
 With fragrance here are often seen;
 And every wild luxurious weed,
 On which the numerous insects feed.

Thus from great nature's store-room, I
 A watchful Parent's well supply

Or wrestling strong, amidst the crowd
To prove his strength, is mightily proud :
To save his limbs from cramp or stich,
His loins he girds, with pliant twich ;
Or tastes, perhaps, the fanning bowl,
To raise the ardour of his soul ;
Whilst sweat in drops his brow besmears,
Like furrow'd cheeks that smart with tears
Which trembling flow, and drop by drop
Their course pursue, but seldom stop.

His favourite Lass, he now, perchance,
Leads down the sprightly rustic dance ;
Or she treats him with spice and ale,
Just as good humour does prevail,
Squat at the door, or near the stall,
The common rendezvous of all
Who crack their nuts, or crack their whips,
As maggots bite of fancy skips.
Unlike the task that glads the bee,
Does man unwearied seek industry ;
For tired limbs, with labour worn
Sit down to rest, and leave the corn,
The standing sheaf to fortune's blast,
Whilst dingy clouds the sky o'ercast,
And fearful thoughts oppress the mind,
Least Providence should prove unkind.

The Farmers' Rejoicing.

He brays content, yet for his pains
Is loaded next with heavy grains ;
Till tired of life, and broken down,
His limbs are strew'd about the town ;
Despis'd, neglected, so things pass,
Betwixt proud man and humble ass.

Now wine and spirits kill dull care,
The pipe, the glass and elbow chair ;
Which many a rainy, darksome night,
Fix'd in the corner gave delight ;
Invites the farmer to be gay,
And throw his doubts and fears away.
In every face there does appear,
The prospect of a fruitful year ;
And as with glee they fill each glass,
They talk of corn, of hay, and grass ;
All murmurs cease, and heartfelt glee
Makes life and thoughts a Jubilee.

Industrious man then sport and play,
For sunshine comes not every day ;
The cordial drop of comfort quaff,
And talk and sing, and dance and laugh.
Be yours with cheerful heart to meet
The winter's cold, or summer's heat ;

Nobility not the happiest State.

And calmly see old age decline
With peace, as I do daily mine.

Let not your children then repine,
If they like nobles do not dine ;
For oft we find beneath does lie
A sting in proud nobility,
A keen worm that eats the sap
In every tree, and leaves a gap
That rankles in the throbbing breast,
And robs the mind of nightly rest.

Since then the secret charm is broke,
Renew the task, the oxen yoke,
Be still content, increase your gain
And think that man lives not in vain.
Sweet is the bread of useful toil,
Which mingles generous wine with oil,
That cheers the drooping heart distress,
And virtue adds, to make it blest.

To field or brake I oft repair,
To see them hunt the fox or hare ;
But scorn to rob, much less to poach,
Or on my neighbour's farm encroach :
For if I want, sure leave is light,
And deeds are black that covet night.

Where Tillmore wide extends its arms,
 Tho' thinly scatter'd round with farms,
 Thie, and on that spacious plain
 Admire the works of God again;
 And from that source of wisdom teach,
 My mind to soar not out of reach.
 There many a rabbit, mart, or mole,
 Steals slyly from its lurking hole,
 Or hissing snake with speck'd skin,
 Curls round its body on the win,
 To bite the stranger on the heel,
 With tongue as sharp as venom'd steel;
 Perhaps I view the bittern there,
 With flapping wings cleave thro' the air;
 Or twittering snipe, or lapwing wild,
 The sport of man or pamper'd child,
 Whilst in the garden screaming round,
 Where many a slug or worm is found,
 To catch the eye, or food produce
 For hunger's wants, or other use.

Sometimes, perhaps, the wild duck then
 On nest I find, couch'd in the fen;
 And many a wild fowl of the lake,
 Which nestle, flap, or fearful quake
 On my approach: how then shall I
 On tim'rous creatures cast an eye,

Who with good cause suspect my aim:
 Am I or they the most to blame?

Here preservation marks me out,
 Another far more distant rout,
 And bids me turn my steps to where,
 There is less cause for jealous fear;
 It bids me wander o'er the lawn,
 Seek other landscapes finely drawn;
 And in the road to bliss, pursue
 The track that offers something new:
 In various forms she courts my muse,
 And shall good nature then refuse?
 Shall fear of harm, or dire mistrust,
 Make me seem cruel or unjust;
 Or make me wilful turn astray
 From Pity's path, or Reason's way?
 Forbid it, thou who charms mine ear,
 Mine eye, that I produce a fear,
 A dread, in creatures which from Thee
 Receive their life and liberty!
 No, fly unfearful thro' the glade,
 Or rest secure within the shade;
 I will not harm your tender care,
 I own I had no business there;
 And will from hence my passion curb,
 Nor in your flight your peace disturb;

Will every curious look forego,
That might create you pain or woe.

Thus, turning to my cottage, where Dwells all my tenderest thoughts and care,
The busy crowd I will attend,
And revel with them to the end ;
In all their sports I will take part,
And clasp each neighbour to my heart ;
With this will chat, with that will sing,
Like birds that hail the new-born spring ;
And be as happy as the best,
'Till comes the poppied hour of rest,
To ease the care-worn mind with sleep ;
'Till rosy morn again shall peep,
And every promis'd comfort send
That can derive from mirth or friend.
Come tell me then, ye little elves,
Who ~~re~~ and trouble oft yourselves,
Are not these happy country-folks,
On whom you pass such bitter jokes,
Far happier in their humble lot,
(For whom you do not care a jot,)
Then those who turn them from the door,
As abject, ragged, starved, and poor :
Their bread is coarse ; but what of that,
Tho' bald beneath the sun-burnt hat,

Yet still in Patience's school, tho' rude,
They do not on the world intrude ;
But humbly meek, and wisely mild,
Act still in age the modest child.
Let Grandeur blush, let Fashion hide
Its head, let weak ambitious pride
No longer tempt the soul to sin ;
The poor man's heart is calm within,
Disdains to flinch from honest aim,
To gain a courtier's splendid name !
Nor will he try, by selfish ends,
(To which his lordship often bends,)
To seek a pension, place, or trust,
By servile deeds that are unjust.

The fowler's sport affords me joy,
Tho' somewhat cruel to destroy ;
Yet when the steady pointers stand,
My awe and wonder they command,
To find in instinct such keen sense
So near to reason, draws from thence
An observation worth man's note,
How near perfection it is brought,
When thro' the stubble each dog tries
The wary partridge to surprise.

THE ASS RACE.

But why dispute that Power above,
Whose care is wisdom, hope is love ;
Who watchful does his part perform
Well in the calm, or in the storm ?
And in misfortune's bitter clime,
Perfection mellows in due time.

Now patient Balaam forth is brought,
To run his race, tho' never taught ;
With spur and whip, the hardy boy
Does all his flogging powers employ,
Astride his back, the stupid beast
Is made to bleed at every feast ;
Whilst, like a tortured negro, he
Is doom'd to smart thro' drudgery ;
And mildly bear with patient scorn,
His sharper than the barbed thorn.

Is this then man's imperious law,
The blood in torrents thus to draw,
To steep this creature thus in woe,
'Till he can neither stand nor go ?
It mocks man's pride, and cries out shame,
To such as bear the Christian name.
But when the arduous contest's o'er
He nips his *nettle*s as before :

With nose acute, and scent so prime,
To moralize I loose no time;
And thus unto myself I say,
What wisdom do I find in Tray,
What power or feeling does him teach,
To go thus far beyond man's reach,
And point out game, which he cannot:
Is there in human skill a blot?
Or if no blot, is there a flaw
That marks the hand less than the paw?

Look here and tell me, in each dog,
Both great and small, is there no clog
That bids e'en common sense declare
How weak man's boasted efforts are?
How bound to earth he drags the chain,
Which proves his understanding vain?
Even Blucher*, in his own defence,
Will sometimes prove a dog of sense;
And, if you let him not alone,
Will snuff and snarl as at a bone;
And tho' not grown to hass his size,
His teeth are sharp, and quick his eye.

The angler's art I do not hate,
But much admire the hook and bait,

* A favourite Newfoundland Dog.

BLUCHER and MORSEY, two favourite Dogs.

The contented Angler.

So nicely form'd, so trim without,
To cheat the grayling, chub, or trout,
Not less I praise the well-made fly,
Which on the watery surface lie,
To lure the fish, and then betray
The finny race, that lurking lay
In depths profound, or muddy shoals,
Close by where dropping ivy falls.
Sometimes the careful angler goes,
To where the mill dam's water flows;
Or to the margin of some stream,
(Prophetic of his nightly dream,)
To tilt his bag with scaly fry,
That will not pass the morsel by;
But gorges death in every hook,
That bated swims within the brook.
With health and pleasure he pursues
His wonted route, shuns city news,
And all the broils of foreign courts
He does despise, for angling sports;
Sits musing on the banks of Ouse,
To catch the prey in silken noose.
With steadfast eye he sits him still,
Well charm'd to see the dancing quill
Bob quickly down, and boldly strike
The wide jaw'd, fierce, heroic pike.

 Temperance conducive to Health.

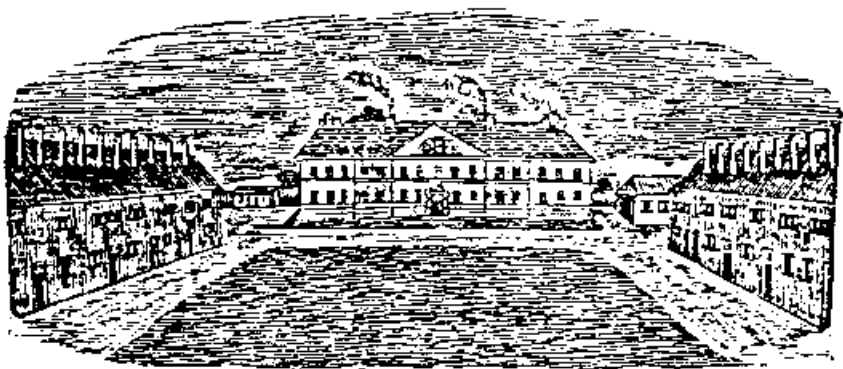

'Tho' not by words or signs express,
Si piscatorem pascas, amare potest.
 And tho' death lurks upon the brink,
 The stream seems pure wherein they sink :
 The bait delicious, and the feast
 If gorg'd with danger profits least.
 Within his basket, plain and good
 Cold beef and bread is all his food :
 Or if not that, his taste to please,
 Perhaps more homely bread and cheese ;
 He seldom does strong liquors take,
 But drinks pure water for the sake,
 Of temperance cool, and healthful use,
 Nor covets punch with lemon juice.

Thus stinted in his private fare,
 Not ragg'd thro' lust ; above despair,
 He tread's a steady, cheerful course,
 Nor envies he his neighbour's purse :
 His mind on meditation bent,
 Reels all the sweets of wise content ;
 Whilst troubled waters vex not him,
 Or who shall sink, or who shall swim ;
 Provided down this worldly tide,
 His friends fair Virtue's precepts guide
 To realms of bliss, to rivers deep,
 Where neither eye nor heart does weep.

 The Soldier's Barracks.

Who would not then an angler be,
 Who thus can live secure and free,
 Amidst the temults of this world,
 By no mistrustful passions hurl'd ?
 But angling on, from sun to sun,
 Folds up his lines when he has done ;
 With thankful praise unbends his rod,
 And peaceful slides to meet his God.

Not far from hence, with easy slope,
 The eye to gaze enjoys full scope ;
 The Barracks and the fields around,
 In pleasing objects much abound :
 Near which dispers'd are buildings neat,
 To make the scenery more complete,
 And add, to finish beauty's power,
 Each shrub, each tree, each hedge and flower.
 Thus in the extensive range of earth
 The fancy gives new pleasures birth,
 And on the memory plants a crown
 No time can change, no threat pull down.
 But, hark ! the bugle-horn's deep note
 My ear assails, on air aloft ;
 The martial sound rings thro' the expanse,
 To rouse the soldier from his trance ;
 The din of arms and neighing steel,
 Proclaims aloud, some warlike deed ;

 YORK BARRACKS.

Whilst drums and trumpets intermixt
 Inspire the ranks, with bayonets fixt,
 To rally forth, to shake the ground,
 And deal dread fear and carnage round.
 But why this horrid, painful task?
 Britons! you neighbouring Frenchmen ask;
 Their perfidy, their broken vows,
 This sacrilegious sport allows;
 To oaths, and prudence, makes them blind,
 And steels their hearts against mankind.

But, lo! our valiant sailors sneer,
 And man our fleets, devoid of fear;
 Once more they on the ocean ride,
 To scourge French arrogance and pride;
 And drub the false perfidious French,
 Who would in blood all nations drench.
 The dreadful cannon's distant roar,
 Is heard again from shore to shore,
 And every preparation's made,
 To carry on the murderous trade.

Whilst thus I peep, with awful view,
 War's bitter scourge my thoughts renew;
 Fear damps my soul, my heart is shrunk,
 My head turns giddy as if drunk;

Each tottering member fearful shakes,
 And peace my troubled breast forsakes.
 How different from the breezy spot,
 Where, undisturb'd, man finds his lot;
 Nor ever under ills does groan,
 But which the mind creates alone.
 Then let me turn from broils like these,
 And milder themes, my wanderings please;
 Forsake the field, the warlike camp,
 Which all my earthly pleasures damp:
 And only dwell where comforts come,
 Within the circle of my home.

But who then makes the valleys ring,
 And clips the Gallie eagle's wing?
 Who glads with peace the woodman's stroke,
 And drives away each foreign yoke?
 Who sheaths the sword, and stops the tide
 When on the furious whirlwinds ride,
 War's horrid deeds?—say, who is he
 That breaks the bonds of slavery?
 'Tis WELLINGTON—the brave and good!
 Who will not shed more human blood;
 But risks his life, his fame and all,
 To make the infernal tyrant fall!—
 And fall he must!—auspicious day,
 From earth that sweeps the wretch away!

York City, the seat of Domestic Happiness.

Then shaft the cottage girl and boy,
(Secure as in the walls of Troy,)
Sleep on, nor fearful break their rest,
By phantom goblins sore oppress;
But chaste, as Innocence can make
The babe from hush'd repose awake.

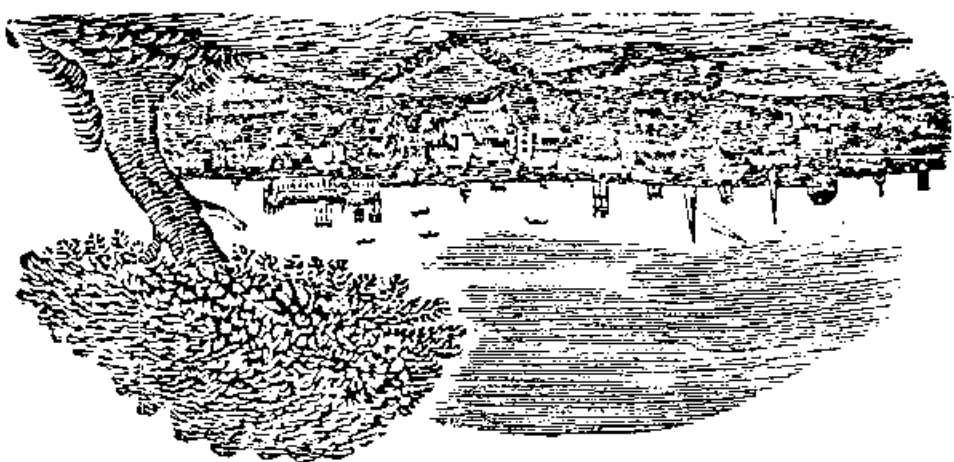

I must not leave thee, York, unsung,
The seat of all my joys when young;
Where oft with fond paternal care,
I found a kind endearment there;
And stole with many an anxious bliss,
A look and fond maternal kiss.

In all my kindred, long I felt
Affection's power within them dwell;
The sweetest boon that heav'n could give,
To die 'midst such, 'midst such to live.

My youthful days were happy then,
Above description from my pen;
No throbbing ills broke nightly rest,
Nor was the passing day unblest;
Mild and serene each moment flew,
Bespang'd o'er with friendship's dew;
Whilst every chequer'd path was strew'd,
With mirth, with hope, and gratitude;
Within the heart lurk'd no disguise,
No jealous thought, no low surmise;

In Ouse, as History seems to say,
Moord, proud Caesar's Fleet once lay.

View of YORK, from LAMEL-HILL.

Harvest Home.

But candid, open, and sincere,
Was every object far and near;

Now down'd to call the fairest flowers,
And spend retir'd my hasting hours;
More happier far, I feel I entwine,
The primrose with the eglantine;
To form a wreath both soft and cool,
And square my life by friendship's rule;
Than feel, chagrind, my strength decays,
Neglected, spurn'd, or cast away.

Now yellow harvest calls for aid,
Tho' labour courts the silent shade,
'The brow-burnt peasant basking blows,
(Where on the bank the willow grows,)
His sweaty face and scorching arms,
That blister'd are by numerous swarms
Of insects keen, that sting him sore,
And try his patience o'er and o'er.
With him the maid, with willing song,
Performs her work the whole day long,
Nor murmurs at the task impos'd,
'Till darkness eve the day has clos'd;
Cheerful, with hope, she seeks to-morrow,
Nor damps her joys with aching sorrow,

But, bustling on, she lovely smiles,
Whilst resignation every hour beguiles.

At you, ye fair, I would not rail,
Could modesty afford a veil
To hide some faults which you possess ;
I would that I could make them less,
Or cover o'er, with simple art,
Some deeds in which you take a part.
Can limbs divinely form'd like yours,
Give way to course athletic powers ?
Or can the softness of your sex,
(That man can charm, or man perplex,)
Be lost in rude, indecent play,
And cast from woman's breast away,
To join in sports I dare not name,
For fear of harm, or teorse—for shame ?
My heart is sad with much disgrace,
To hear or see a female race ;
And loath I am, that there should be,
A woman lost to sense, or modesty.
O, lovely fair, did you but know,
What tears you make compassion flow,
When from your sex you rudely try
To step ! What sorrow steeps the eye
When thus disgustful, for some prize
You start ! Ah, turn, and be more wise,

Blot out the shame, and home retire,
And blow your pottage at the fire.

But why should I against you write,
Or black my quill in gamesome spite ;
Or on your conduct be severe ?
On neither side I will appear,
But leave the scandal at your door,
And never reprimand you more.
I will desist to blame your choice,
My paper stain, or raise my voice
In plaintive strains, to sing or tell
How high you soar'd, how low you fell.

Each minstrel of the wild I hear,
Whose pleasing music sooths mine ear ;
Whilst Roger, whistling to his team,
Drives on beneath fair Luna's beam,
And homeward trots with glee again,
Not flush'd with pride, or glory vain ;
A smiling offspring grace his board,
More blest and happy than a lord ;
He seeks no wealth, no higher state,
But bows him to the will of fate.
Waking from sleep, the rising morn
Beholds him blest, to meekness born ;

The Crows watching the Plow.

And tho' in toil his years are spent,
 His only care—to pay his rent ;
 His landlord please, to him be true,
 And give to every man his due.
 Delusive hope ! the morning drest,
 Opens like rose its blushing breast,
 Or like the gem in worth sublime,
 In radiance braves the blast of time.

From HESTINGTON I sometimes range
 More wide, and in my wand'rings change ;
 Catch health from tending on the plow,
 And see the watchful, jet-black crow,
 With bill ingulf'd, his time employ
 The sluggish beetle to destroy ;
 Or worm that's twisting round its shape,
 The murd'ring plow-share to escape.

The fleecy flocks in winter cold,
 With net secure, I oft behold ;
 The turnips' strength'ning juice they sip,
 And moisten oft the clay parch'd lip ;
 Or fatten on the lucious root,
 Which sometimes stands the season out,
 Or find decay, as storms appear,
 That blast the stem with rains severe.

The Fruits of Charity.

Nourishing, as the food on which they feed,
 A short or longer life they lead ;
 So man by Vice, will soonest rot
 And die, by every friend forgot ;
 Whilst Virtue, like the richest grass,
 Will nourish life as on we pass
 To that fair pasture, fresh and green,
 Exquisite in taste, and comely to be seen.

Sometimes I see the trembling hind,
 With Charity, jog on behind.
 For Charity, by goodness lead,
 Can almost wake the silent dead.
 This only can the wealthy share,
 Yet wealth (sometimes) will fly from care ;
 And oft with scorn its visit pays,
 To comfort, peace, and happier days.

Ah ! can the man who deigns to look,
 In Nature's wide unerring book,
 Call tender Mercy's God-like power,
 The wanton caprice of an hour ?
 Will not compassion strongly prove,
 The gentle source of friendly love ?
 If such move not man's passion, he
 Is then a slave to treachery ;

 Man's Forgetfulness of his State.

Not open in his words or deeds,
 With shame he acts, and then proceeds
 To fix each guilty, lawless crime,
 That takes him off, perhaps, in prime.

Absorb'd too oft in show and glare,
 Life's empty baubles at us stare ;
 Lost in the maze, we soon forget
 What all owe Nature as a debt ;
 And chain'd to being's empty toy,
 Our time in vain pursuits employ.
 Death is a dagger on the rack,
 That fain, with hope, would drive us back
 To short existence, which but mars
 Our peace, and strikes against the stars :
 The obtrusive veil which dims the sight,
 And makes our way to Heaven less bright.

Instruction ! tell man's mighty blood,
 That to be great is to be good !
 And if 'tis ask'd, make this reply—
 Who gives the most is fit to die,
 Nor think my verse a fault or crime,
 That truth is truth, tho' told in rhyme.
 I sure may laugh at every fool,
 Who lost the task he learnt at school ;

 Unobserved Beauties in Nature.

And simply smile at every eit,
 Who has more money and less wit ;
 Yet not be thought to aggravate
 Mankind, in any sphere or state.

In this gay village, social bound,
 Where sweet Arcadia blooms around,
 Where snow-drops fringe the sloping hill,
 Or murmurs mock the falling rill ;
 Or when across the verdant mead,
 My nimble feet I sometimes tread ;
 I find oft in the bramble room,
 Sweet groups of roses' early bloom ;
 And in each wood and valley find,
 Delights unknown to half mankind.
 Thus whilst the seeds or blossoms dwell
 Upon the sight, or please the smell,
 New founts of bliss they do disclose,
 From hair-bell soft, or blushing rose.

Fair objects of the rural hour !
 Enrich'd, I seek each favourite bower ;
 And find the garden or the wood,
 As meant for raiment or for food !
 See Nature's hand-maid bounteous grown,
 Who claims such children for her own !

 Truth best exemplified in Retirement.

'Thine, HUSBANDRY ! seems such indeed,
 Who on a good man's bounty feed ;
 Who, nurs'd and hous'd, encir'd live
 With all the care that wealth can give ;
 With every gift that in it lies,
 Above weak pride, or mean disguise,
 Come hither, then ! Ye wise retire,
 Nor yet to greater joys aspire !
 Come, seek with me, the vetch's bloom,
 The fragrance of the bean's perfume ;
 Where Truth, that dear immortal maid,
 In every bush stands meek array'd ;
 In every mound, where art does build
 The gay alcove, and decks the field.

'Thus flattering Hope proclaims me free,
 Tho' gone some golden days from me.
 And tho' I rove, in fancy lost,
 In rapture,—I enjoy it most
 When scenes like these upon me dart.
 And fill'd with joy, half burst my heart !
 Which everying melts within my frame,
 And mixes with life's vital stream.
 Let minds that seek, possess the globe,
 But mine shall put on Nature's robe.

 The Peasant returned from Labour.

My source of peace and cure shall be,
 To seek thy shade, Humility ;
 Shude the blast of inborn pride,
 And no inferior state deride ;
 Keep my weak heart from vice exempt,
 And treat not others with contempt.

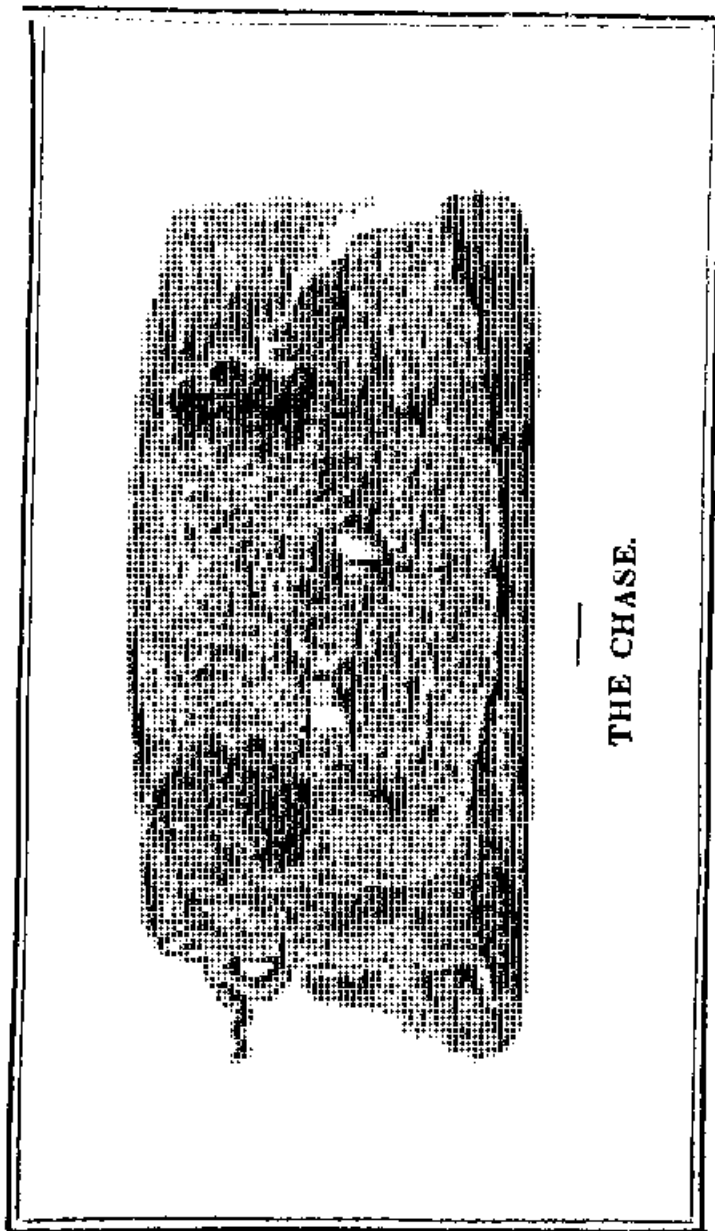

Even in the gloom of winter's cold,
 When surly winds have beat and howl'd,
 No lamp of light to tip the cloud,
 But all, like death, lies in a shroud ;
 The servile peasant finds repose,
 As through the darksome maze he goes ;
 And cheers his soul with patience strong,
 To seek his quiet home e'er long.

'Then comes the fond endearing sigh,
 That speaks the soul's soft sympathy ;
 The rapturous look, the nuptial chord,
 That cheers the heart at every word ;
 This does each poignant grief prevent,
 And builds a lasting monument,
 And adds to death a shrine and plume,
 The miser's hoard dare not assume
 To grace his funeral, or to rear
 A proud memorial—Who lies here !

The Hunter exercising in the Park.

No moss-grown hillock, stone, or grass,
Tells future ages who he was,
But in the waste, alone, hid deep,
Mute Silence bids the poor man sleep.
Thou' nearly born, amongst rough crags,
To break the stones he only brags,
Or hint the brambles on the moor,
Yet cares not who calls him a boor.
And thus from gilded woes detach'd,
(By fortune's play-mates seldom watch'd,)
He grovels on, till time and age,
With pity sweeps him off the stage;
Cuts down the cumbrous branch, and stem
Of honest worth—altho' a gem.

Sung where the pensive owl she moopes,
(By artists oft exposed in tropes,)
Or where the leather'd winged bat,
All day in hidden cave has sat,
In solemn, musing, mournful plight,
The day to shun, and seek the night,
The sprightly hunter, bold and fleet,
Comes forth to take his sweetly heat.
Around the drifted park, with speed
I see the mett'd, high-bred steed

THE CHASE.

With pliant force his limbs out stretch,
And rainbow neck above man's reach ;
What spirit do I here behold,
What fire ! tho' he in years is old ;
What sportive fancy spurs the horse,
Not least in action, nor in force.
Soon as the snow, in feather'd drops,
Falls, where the fieldfare hawthorn crops,
And yields fresh verdure to the ground,
To kill the hare, the sleek greyhound,
From couples panting to be free,
Impatient springs for liberty.
With heavy thong, the rattling leaves,
The cracking smack of whip receives ;
Where, under ambush, puss is laid,
Up starts—then all mens' debts are paid !
Forgot in rapture, sportsman like,
Who ride full speed o'er hedge and dike,
'Till close pursu'd, and out of breath,
Gives up herself—and yields to death.

Flush'd glows with echo's praise the cheek,
As down the bank again they seek,
The yet unstarted game to find,
Tho' careful not to leave behind

The Fate of Puss described.

'The snore, where thro' and thro' by night,
The wanderer takes her moonlight flight.
If chance directs them to the spot,
Again all troubles are forgot,
And in the wish'd-for chase in view,
To worldly matters bid adieu ;
'Till evening comes, and days decline,
Then every thought is drown'd in wine.

The lordly banquet in the hall,
(Where ancient tenebrous light the wall)
Refresh the sportsmen with great taste,
For here no want is, here no taste ;
Whilst the kind owner oft does tell,
The fate which on aly past befel ;
Whilst those who to the feast resort,
With hearty welcome, quaff red Port,
Champagne, Madeira, or old Hock,
'Till twelve strikes by the village clock,
And calls them forth, with ' Friends good night.'
Let morrow's dawn give fresh delight,
The chase renew, then come again
At Friendship's call, and try the plain.
Once more the nimble hare pursue,
Yet keep the festive board in view.

The Charms of Contemplation.

'The fresh'ning breeze from south to north,
Next morning calls the coursers forth ;
Charm'd at ' So, ho !' or ' Lo, ho, loo !'
He mounts his horse, and buckles too ;
As eager for old Nimrod's bliss,
As Venus was for Cupid's kiss :
Nay more so, if it is bett'rd
That false amours have oft deceiv'd.
But free I hope, from such alarms,
Take we our country to our arms ;
Nor let us wish to change the scene,
Which sometimes proudly gops between,
To make us happy, blest, and free,
As in the country we can be ;
Nor wish for more, or what is past,
So long as rural beauties last.

Devoted to a silent sphere,
(Where better to be found than here ?)
Where man may sit and read and write,
Not harass'd out by vulgar spite ;
But hear the tuneful birds at eve,
Their mellow notes to freedom give ;
And constancy, in truth declare,
What greater comforts would he share.

Let me, since my poor eye grows dim,
Enjoy retirement's friendly whim ;
Bask in the shade of private ease,
And do for once, just as I please.

Adieu, then, all ye brilliant rays,
That gilded o'er my former days ;
Grown old—but not ungrateful still,
I quit each scene against my will
That once in earlier youth I sought,
By age matur'd, by wisdom taught.

For happier climes (if happier they)
I bend—O! shall I lose my way ?
Thro' error struggle evermore,
As brighter orbs I still explore.
No, suffer not my worn-out frame,
To play in death a losing game ;
The prospect hide, or dwindle out
Existence blind, thro' fear or doubt.

Gratitude! dear nymph, 'tis thee I court,
For I have been Misfortune's sport ;
The shuttlecock of adverse fate,
And battledor'd both soon and late ;
Like some lone pilgrim on his way,
Wand'ring thro' many a bitter day.

From gen'rous minds, thou coppiest fair
The human heart, if Virtue's there ;
Implants a tree that nobly shows,
The fruit that on its branches grows ;
And with unblemish'd, artless bloom,
Casts cypress o'er the poet's tomb.

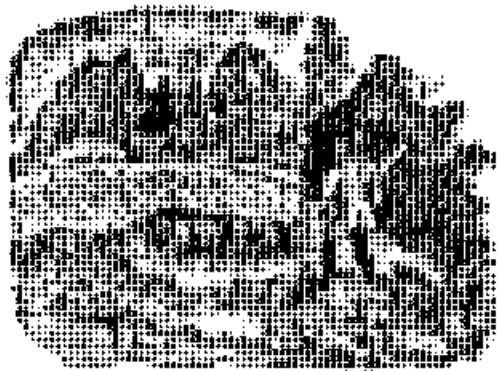

Ye happy herds, ye feather'd tribe !
Above the meanness of man's bribe ;
Ye spotless flocks and anshorn lambs !
That bleating skip amongst your dams ;
With you I oft have wander'd wild,
And seen your sports when but a child ;
Nor envy'd you the short-liv'd hoar,
That snatch'd you from the vary'd flow'r !
From me the promis'd moment, when Malicious fortune spoil'd my pen,
Dash'd out, alas ! the flattering theme,
And cry'd, 'tis but a poet's dream,
A fictitious tale, an old man's song,
As thro' life's vale he trots along.

To each kind FRIEND my thanks I pay,
Whose name has grac'd my humble lay ;
And whilst the crimson drops, which cheer
A mind alert, and heart sincere,

Acknowledgment to Friends.

The grateful stream shall ebb and flow
Incessant, whilst I breathe below !
No time, no changeful seasons drear,
Shall make me false, or damp with fear
The arduous task to please ; and prove
How much I value and I love,
Such gen'rous aid, the cordial wish,
That throws sweet comfort in my dish,
And adds to garnish every scene,
For me and mine, an ever-green.

THE END.

 Calendars of Lincoln Wills - Vol II
 Edited by C. W. Foster, M.A., F.S.A.

CALENDAR No. III.

Wills proved in the Consistory Court of Lincoln,
 1506-1600.

This series contains some thirty-two thousand sixteenth-century wills, which were proved in the Consistory Court of the Bishop of Lincoln, the Court of the Commissary of the Bishop within the Archdeaconry of Lincoln, and the Court of the Archdeacon of Lincoln within his Archdeaconry. The records of these three Courts have not been preserved separately. The references in this calendar, which give the approximate date of probate, are to the Books deposited in the Lincoln District Registry of the Court of Probate. In the following instances the titles of the Books have been shortened in the Calendar:—

1506, etc.	stands for	1506 and subsequent years.
1534, etc.	"	1534 and divers subsequent years.
1545-6, etc., ii.	"	1545 and 1546 and others, Book ii. (This book contains some wills proved in 1559 and 1560.)
Var.	"	Various years.
1566, etc.	"	Divers years bound in a Book marked '1566.'

The roman numerals refer to the several volumes into which some of the Books are divided.

The Book marked "1595, Book i" is said to be missing.

It should be mentioned that Calendar No. III has been prepared from the manuscript calendars in modern handwriting in the Lincoln District Registry, but in cases of doubtful readings or other obscurities the Books have been carefully referred to.

The Rev. Canon A. R. Maddison, F.S.A., has printed two volumes of abstracts of "Lincolnshire Wills,"* most of which are registered in the Consistory Court. The first series of these abstracts covers the same period as this calendar, and contains, together with other wills, most of the wills of gentle families recorded in this Court. The second series extends from 1600 to 1617. An asterisk has been placed in the calendar against the wills which appear in Canon Maddison's first volume.

* First Series, A.D. 1500-1600 (Lincoln: James Williamson, 1898). Second Series, A.D. 1600-1617 (same publisher, 1891).

Courts of Probate at Lincoln.

The following is a complete list of the Wills and Administrations at Lincoln, so far as can be ascertained. Except where it is stated otherwise, the records are deposited in the District Probate Registry in the Exchequer Gateway at Lincoln.

- I. Wills and Administrations recorded in the Episcopal Registers of the Ancient Diocese of Lincoln, deposited in the Alnwick Tower of the Old Palace at Lincoln. These extend from 1520 to 1547, and are calendared in this volume. See pp. v, vi.
- II. Miscellaneous Wills in the Alnwick Tower, dating 1489. The wills prior to 1600 are calendared in this volume. See pp. vii, viii.
- III. The Consistory Court of the Bishop, with which are incorporated the Court of the Commissary of the Bishop within the Archdeaconry of Lincoln, and the Court of the Archdeacon of Lincoln within his Archdeaconry. The wills commence in 1506, and continue till 1858, when the Lincoln District Registry of the Probate Division of the H. M. High Court of Justice was established. There are no wills from 1653 to 1659 inclusive. The wills from 1506 to 1600 are calendared in the present volume, and those from 1601 to 1652 are in course of preparation for a second volume, of which it is intended to issue an instalment next year. The administration bonds commence about 1550, but the manuscript calendar only extends from 1700 to 1858. There are also three books of wills marked "A" (1672-1676), "B" (1638-1639), and "C" (1700-1730), with a separate manuscript calendar.
- IV. The Commissary Court of the Bishop of Lincoln within the Archdeaconry of Stow and the Court of the Archdeacon of Stow within his Archdeaconry, which comprised the wapentakes of Manlake, Aslackhoe, Corringham, Well, and Lawres. The wills extend from 1530 to 1834, and the administrations from 1582 to 1829, with, however, almost a blank from 1650 to 1660.
- V. The Court of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, the jurisdiction of which extended over the parishes of St. Margaret and St. Mary Magdalen in the Close of Lincoln; St. Nicholas and St. John in the City of Lincoln; Asgarby, Blinbrook, St. Gabriel, North and South Carlton, Dunholme, Dalby, Friesthorpe, Glentham, Hainton, North Kelsey, Melton Ross, Sculby, Scamblesby, Scredington, Skillington, Southrey, Strubby, Thurlby, Welton, Wellingore, all in the County of Lincoln; together with a few wills of persons dying within the Peculiarities of the Archdeacons of Lincoln. A few early wills from 1271 to 1534 are in the Muniment Room of the Dean and Chapter, and the wills and administrations from 1534 to 1834 are in the District

Probate Registry, where there is a good manuscript calendar. Mr. Gibbons has printed part of a calendar of these wills and administrations from 1534 to 1780, including the letters A to R, in his "Notes on the Visitation of Lincolnshire, 1634" (Williamson: Lincoln, 1898).

- VI. Biggleswade, co. Bedford, Prebendal Court, wills and administrations from 1639 to 1742. Other wills proved in this Court are deposited at Northampton. (See Marshall's "Ancient Courts of Probate," p. 5.)
- VII. Bishop's Norton, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction over the parish of Bishop's Norton and the town of Atterby; wills and administrations from 1613 to 1814.
- VIII. Caistor, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction over the parishes of Caistor and Chxby and the town of Holton le Moor; wills and administrations from 1636 to 1833. The calendar of this Court has been printed in the "Northern Genealogist," vol. i (1895), pp. 42-45.
- IX. Corringham, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, wills and administrations from 1632 to 1833.
- X. Duddington, co. Northampton, Peculiar Court, wills and administrations from 1740 to 1830.
- XI. Empingham, co. Rutland, Peculiar Court, wills and administrations from 1669 to 1744. Other wills proved in this Court are deposited at Peterborough (Marshall's "Ancient Courts of Probate," p. 18).
- XII. Gretton, co. Rutland, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction extending over the parishes of Gretton and Duddington; wills and administrations from 1684 to 1832. There is also a small bundle of Gretton, Duddington, and Liddington wills in the District Registry.
- XIII. Heydour with Walton, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction extending over the parish of Heydour and the towns of Kefby and Culverthorpe; wills and administrations from 1669 to 1836.
- XIV. Kirkstead, co. Lincoln, Manorial Court, with jurisdiction extending over Kirkstead, Kirkby on Baine, Mearbooth, Tattershall, Tattershall Thorpe, and Woodhall. The wills, which are said to commence in 1752 and end before 1800, have not yet been found at Lincoln, and enquiries at Horncastle, etc., have met with no success.
- XV. Kirton in Lindsey, co. Lincoln, Peculiar Court, wills and administrations from 1535 to 1834.
- XVI. Louth, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction extending over Louth; wills and administrations from 1659 to 1859, of which a calendar has been printed by Mr. Gibbons in the "Northern Genealogist," vol. i (1895), pp. 85-87 and 162-164, and vol. ii (1896), pp. 172-175. Dr. Marshall says that there are ten wills belonging to this Court, between 1612 and 1725, in the Registry of the Bishop and Dean and Chapter of Lincoln ("Ancient Courts of Probate," p. 36).

- XVII. Nassington, co. Rutland, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction extending over Nassington, Yarwell, Apehorpe, and Woodnewton; wills and administrations from 1660 to 1788. There are other wills, proved in this Court, deposited at Peterborough.
- XVIII. New Simford, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, wills and administrations from 1610 to 1834. According to Dr. Marshall, some of the wills belonging to this Court are in the Muniment Room of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln.
- XIX. Stow in Lindsey, co. Lincoln, Prebendal Court, with jurisdiction extending over the parish of Stow and the towns of Sturton and Normanby by Stow; wills and administrations from 1610 to 1833.
- XX. Probate and Administration Act Books, commencing about 1568, in four portfolios and several volumes in the Alnwick Tower.
- XXI. Lincoln City Wills of the fourteenth century in the Minster Library.
- XXII. A small bundle of Bedfordshire, Buckinghamshire, Hertfordshire, Huntingdonshire, and Northamptonshire wills, belonging for the most part to the earlier half of the seventeenth century.

I desire to acknowledge my indebtedness to the kindness of Mrs. Tempest of Broughton, who has given me valuable assistance in identifying some of the places in Calendar No. I, and to F. A. Blaydes, Esq., F.S.A., who revised the Bedfordshire entries in the same Calendar.

The thanks of the British Record Society and of the public are due to the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Lincoln for permission to print calendars of the wills in the Alnwick Tower; to the Right Hon. Sir Francis H. Jeune, K.C.B., who, as President of the Probate Division of the High Court of Justice, has allowed the calendars in the Lincoln District Registry to be copied for this volume; to John Swan, Esq., Registrar at Lincoln, for his courtesy in allowing arrangements to be made for having the calendars copied; to W. W. Smith, Esq., Secretary to the Bishop of Lincoln; and to the clerks in the District Probate Registry.

INTRODUCTION.

AN apology is due to the subscribers for the length of time that they have been kept waiting for the completion of this volume. The delay, however, has its compensation. It was only under pressure that I consented to edit this second volume, for, while I could not shut my eyes to the fact that there were many errors and omissions in the official manuscript calendar from which it was prepared, I could not find time to make a new calendar from the wills themselves. When, however, pages 1-96 had been printed, Mr. J. S. Smith, one of the clerks in the District Probate Registry, collated the official calendar with the volumes of wills, and to his skill and patient labour those who use this calendar are very deeply indebted.

From pages 97 to the end the results of Mr. Smith's work are incorporated in the text, and the appendix (pages 215-227), which is distressingly lengthy, contains the corrections which ought to be made in the text of pages 1-96. The appendix has been put into a form which will enable readers to use it, with as little inconvenience as may be, side by side with the text.

During the last few years the records of the Bishop of Lincoln have been in process of arrangement, and among them a great number of testamentary documents have been found and transferred to the District Probate Registry. These, in so far as they relate to the period from 1600 to 1652, have been included in this volume, and have helped to swell the appendix.

An index of persons residing outside the county of Lincoln has been added to the volume, and the places have, so far as possible, been identified, and given in this index under their modern names.

My thanks are due to E. A. Fry, Esq., to whom those interested in historical research are deeply indebted, for cutting up and arranging the entries in alphabetical order; to Gordon L. Simpson, Esq., Registrar of the Lincoln District Probate Registry, for his interest and assistance in the work; and to Mr. J. S. Smith for help which has greatly added to the value of this calendar.

THE YARBURGH PEDIGREE

THERE are degrees of iniquity in the methods of the pedigree-maker. One of them may assert an affiliation which is nothing but a guess of his own; another may tamper with the evidence or even forge a document to prove an alleged descent; a third may invent an entire pedigree, lock, stock, and barrel. But this last is a dangerous game and most dangerous of all when there is mention of facts or dates, or worse still, of records. They give, no doubt, vraisemblance to a tale, but the cautious artist should eschew them rigidly, and as a matter of fact he usually did.

Mr. Freeman, who dealt with Burke's Peerage in such merciless fashion,¹ insisted that a mere glance at Domesday was enough to blow to pieces some of the fictions it contained. And it is to the Domesday Book that I must refer in the Yarburgh case.

The statement under 'Deramore' in Burke's Peerage, as to the origin of the Yarburghs, is as follows:

The family of Yarburgh, is one of great antiquity, and can trace an authenticated (sic) male succession, from the time of the Norman Conquest. At that period, Eustachius de Yarburgh was Lord of Yarburgh, co. Lincoln, which manor, together with the patronage of the living, still remains vested in his representative, the present Lord Deramore. . . .

Edmund Yarburgh, . . . son of Francis Yarburgh, sergeant-at-law, and the lineal descendant of Eustachius de Yarburgh, lord of Yarburgh, temp. Conquestoris, etc., etc.

The statement, we see, is quite definite and the descent 'authenticated.' Moreover, if words have any meaning, it is distingly implied that the manor of Yarburgh has descended from 'Eustachius' to 'his representative the present Lord Deramore.' Infinitely rare as is a proved descent, in the male line, from the Conqueror's day, the continuous tenure of a manor is a thing rarer still, but such tenure would give the most convincing proof of the descent.

When, however, we turn to Domesday, there is no 'Eustachius de Yarburgh' to be found: Yarborough (Gereburg), which is assessed at 2½ carucates and 1½ bovates, appears only as an appendage of the royal manor of Gayton. We are reminded of Freeman's fierce attack on Sir Bernard Burke and his Peerage:

The tale is sheer invention, it is mere falsehood, which might at any time be confronted by the simple process of turning to Domesday. . . . When the pedigree was invented, Domesday was still doubtless in manuscript, but is it possible that there is no copy of those precious volumes in the library of Ulster King-at-Arms?²

But let us investigate for ourselves the manorial descent of Yarborough. About a generation after Domesday, we have what is known as the Lindsey survey. In this survey, Yarborough (Yerbure) appears with the same assessment (expressed as 2 carucates and 5½ bovates) but the great soke of Gayton-le-Wold, of which it formed part, is now in the hands of the Count of Brittany. Passing to the reign of Henry III, we find that Yarborough (Yerdeburgh) was held in 1242-3 jointly with its neighbour, Grimblethorpe, of the Honour of Richmond (representing the Count of Brittany), as half a knight's fee, by Richard, son of John, and Alan, son of Walter, together.³ Some sixty years later, 1303, we find this half fee split into two quarters, one of them held by Philip Fraunke, the other by the Prior of Alvingham.⁴ In 1428, Philip's quarter, after being held by Robert Darcy, was in the hands of Patrick Skipwith⁵ (less a third of it, held by John Skipwith's widow). The Yarburghs have not yet appeared upon the scene.⁶ But when we turn to the concocted pedigree, we find Yarburghs from the Conquest, all of them marrying, of course, into the best families. From Eustachius de Yarburgh, in 1066, it took four generations to reach the days of Stephen (1135-1154), and their wives were daughters of 'Sir Lambert Munby,' of 'Arthur Ormsby, Esq.,' of 'Sir Ralph Humberston, knt.,' and of 'Sir William Staine.'⁷ I need hardly add that all these marriages are fiction. After Stephen, the pace slackened; it took indeed but three generations to reach the reign of Richard II (1377-1399), when Richard de Yarburgh 'flourished.'⁸ Three generations later we have another Richard de Yarburgh, 'Lord of the manors of Yarburgh and Kelstern,' who may probably be identified with that Richard Yarburgh of Yarborough, gentleman, who was a feoffee of four different properties in 1431;⁹ though he is not entered as the owner of any. As to the manor of Kelstern, its true history is known. It passed from the Missendens of Great Missenden to John de Iwardby (or Ewerby), who married their heiress and who was holding the manor in 1431.¹⁰ From him it descended to their grandson, John Iwardby, who died in 1485,¹¹ and whose youngest daughter and co-heir brought it to her husband, Sir Thomas Clifford, and died seised of it in 1558.¹² It is therefore quite untrue that Richard Yarburgh, or his descendant, Charles Yarburgh, who died in 1544, were as alleged, lords of the manor.¹³ Richard 'Yerborowe' appears to have had a small holding in Kelstern in or about the year 1485,¹⁴ and Charles was buried in its church.

Family Origins

A John 'Zerburgh de Zerburgh' was a juror for an inquest taken at Louth in 1401-2 for the South Riding of Lindsey,¹⁵ but those among whom he is found do not appear to have been land owners, and the manor of Yarburgh, we know, was then in other hands. It is significant, however, that he does not appear in the pedigree, for in his case a record proves both his existence and his date.

It looks to me as if here again we had to do with the usual Elizabethan pedigree, and if so, it may have been compiled for 'Francis Yarburgh, Esq., of Northampton, serjeant-at-law anno 37 Elizabeth,' who founded the Yorkshire line, or for his father, Edmund. It appears, if the transcript can be trusted, as early as 1562 in the Visitation of Lincolnshire made in that year.¹⁶

George John Lloyd inherited the Hall from his uncle in 1856 (and incidentally was the man responsible for the building of the village school and St Paul's church) and, in turn, his daughter inherited the property. Her husband George William de Yarburgh-Bateson also inherited, from his brother, the barony which brought to Heslington Hall, in 1890, its first Lord Deramore. Their two sons, Robert Wilfred (third baron Deramore) and George Nicholas (fourth baron Deramore) occupied the Hall during the twentieth century.

Architecturally the Hall was slightly changed, externally in 1876 when some of the more eccentric parts of the 1855 skyline were removed (notably the staircase towers reverted to their former flat roofs) and internally in 1903. Major changes, of course, were made prior to occupation by the University in 1962. The family had left the Hall at the outbreak of the Second World War, during which the Hall became the Headquarters of 64 Group, Bomber Command. After the war the Hall stood empty for almost twenty years until, with Dr Bernard Fielden as architect, it was converted for use by the University. The two wings were gutted of their nineteenth century warren of rooms to provide accommodation in the north wing for the library (subsequently to provide offices for the Registrar's department) and in the south wing for the university's first dining hall (with a new kitchen block to the rear). In the main hall the fireplace and much of the panelling were removed and a new staircase and gallery were built. But the link with the past is intact - Eynns' stucco ceiling, Charles Yarburgh's heraldic panels at the north end, Yarburgh Graeme's heraldic window and the linenfold doors, splendid examples of Victorian craftsmanship at its best. Other rooms, many with their nineteenth century decorated ceilings and panelling, are little changed, especially the Lesser Hall (G09) and the Morning Room (G12) whilst, above the main entrance, the University's principal administrative building still carries the Yarburgh achievement with its motto "Non est sine pulvere palma".

Introductory Notes on the building and its owners

Heslington Hall, as it now stands, is a twentieth century modification of a typical small Elizabethan country house rebuilt in the nineteenth century. The original house, completed about 1568 to the design of a now-unknown architect, was built for Thomas Eynns (Eames, Eymis) and his wife Elizabeth (daughter of Sir Edward Neville). As Secretary and Keeper of the Seal to the Council of the North, Eynns, who came from a Shropshire family, was able to acquire both a moderate fortune and former monastic lands at Lowthorpe, Bughorpe and Heslington and his new country house symbolised his social and material progress.

Of the original house some parts remain including the two staircase towers, the lower courses of the two wings, much of the courtyard face and, in particular, the pendant stucco ceiling over the great hall which has been compared with the similar ceiling at Gilling Castle and may be the work of the same craftsman.

Eynns died in 1573 and, in 1601, the Hall and the estate were sold by his nephews to the Hesketh family. On the death of Thomas Hesketh III in 1708 the Hall passed, by marriage, into the ownership of the Yarbrough family, where it remained until 1852.

Little happened to the Hall, structurally, during the seventeenth century. Thomas Hesketh I built almshouses in the village and the Hall did not suffer at all during the Civil War even though Fairfax and his army approached York, for the siege of 1644, via Fulford and Heslington and set up cannon on Windmill Hill to fire into the city. In the early eighteenth century the gardens were laid out in formal style. A gazebo, with reflecting rectangular pond and canal, was built and the yew alleys, later to bring the Heslington gardens some modest fame, were planted about 1720. In the great hall Charles Yarbrough (owner, 1754-1789) added a series of heraldic panels, 57 in all, to commemorate all the Yarbrough marriages since the eleventh century. They were all eventually painted over to be rediscovered later and a few still remain.

Socially the Yarbroughs achieved their most distinguished match during the early years of their ownership of the Hall when, in 1719, Henrietta Maria, daughter of Anne (Hesketh) and James Yarbrough, married Sir John Vanbrugh who, at the time, was involved in the design of Castle Howard. He does not appear, however, to have had any architectural influence on Heslington Hall. For the rest of the eighteenth century the Yarbroughs lived the lives typical of the county squires and the Hall "slumbered in prosperity, sending its patched and commoded daughters to dance country dances in the Long Room at Scarborough, or to walk minuets at the great Assembly Rooms at York, until it should give them in marriage; and its sons to the militia, or on to the raccourse and to the cockpit". It was Henry Yarbrough (owner 1789-1825) who caught the eye of the Revd. Sydney Smith then living in Heslington pending the completion of his new vicarage at Foston. Heslington Hall, he wrote, was "a fine old house of the time of Queen Elizabeth, where resided the last of the squires, with his lady, who looked as though she had walked straight out of the Ark... He was a perfect specimen of the Trullibers of old; he smoked, hunted, drank beer at his door with his grooms and dogs, and spent over the county paper on Sundays. At first, he heard I was a Jacobin and a dangerous fellow, and turned aside as I passed; but at length, when he found the peace of the village undisturbed... he bowed, then called, and at last reached such a pitch of confidence that he used to bring the papers that I might explain the difficult words to him; actually discovered that I had made a joke, laughed till I thought he would have died of convulsions, and ended by inviting me to see his dogs". Henry's brother Nicholas (owner 1825-1852), the last of the line and still referred to locally as 'Major Yarbrough', achieved the family ambition by winning the St Leger in 1839 with his horse Charles XII.

On Nicholas' death the Hall passed into the ownership of his nephew Yarbrough Graeme, the man who, although he already owned and had rebuilt Sewerby Hall, set about the rebuilding of Heslington Hall. With his architect (P. C. Hardwick who designed the Great Hall of Euston Station) he achieved the virtual destruction of the Elizabethan Hall. Eynns had built and its replacement by a largely Victorian building. The forecourt face of the building was faithfully restored, a copy of the stone doorway with its two pairs of Corinthian columns replaced the original which was moved into the walled garden; the great hall behind the facade was largely preserved with its original stucco ceiling and Charles Yarbrough's heraldic panels. But the entire garden front, apart from the staircase towers, was rebuilt and enlarged and the two side wings (one of which had been the stable block) were rebuilt. The solar Elizabethan skyline was punctuated by flamboyant chimney stacks and the two staircase towers were capped with slated pyramids. Inside new panelling, new doors, new rooms and decorative ceilings (many with heraldic devices) replaced the original. The canted bay window of the great hall (dated 1855) received twenty-five stained glass shields displaying Yarbrough Graeme's personal 'quarterings'. A modest Elizabethan country house became a Victorian mansion of 109 rooms. Outside, the formal eighteenth century garden was re-styled; the rectangular fish-pond was grassed over, a new terrace created and much of the available space taken up by an irregularly shaped lake with the inevitable boat-house and dove cote. New stables were built.

THE NAME AND FAMILY
YARBROUGH OR YARBOROUGH

Compiled by
THE MEDIA RESEARCH BUREAU

Washington, D.C.

THE NAME AND FAMILY OF YARBROUGH OR YARBOROUGH

The name of YARBROUGH or YARBOROUGH is derived from the residence of its first bearers at Yarburgh, in the County of Lincoln, England. There are two places so called in Lincolnshire, one a parish in the union of Louth, and the other a hamlet in the parish of Croxton. The actual meaning of the word is "Earth-Fortification". In ancient English and early American records the name occurs in the various spellings of Yerburgh, Yerdburgh, Yerbury, Yarbury, Yarburgh, Yarbora, Yerdebure, Yerdeburch, Yerbergh, Yerbora, Yerborowe, Yerborough, Yerbrough, Yarberough, Yarborough, Yarbrough, and others. Of the forms mentioned, the last two are in general use in America in modern times.

Originally seated in Lincolnshire, branches of the family were also to be found in early times in the English Counties of Somerset, London, York, Wilts, Gloucester, and Oxford. These lines belonged, for the most part, to the landed gentry and nobility of the British Isles.

As early as the time of the Norman Conquest, 1066 A.D.,

Eustacius de Yarburgh or Yarborough was Lord of Yarburgh, in Lincoln. He had a son, Robert de Yarburgh or Yarborough, who married a daughter of Sir Lambert Munby and had issue by her of Lambert de Yarburgh or Yarborough, who married a daughter of Arthur Ormesby and had issue by her of Sir John, who married Ursula, daughter of Sir Raphe or Ralph Humberston. To this union was born a son named Ralph, who had issue by his wife Anne, daughter of Sir William Steine, of Robert de Yarborough, who married a daughter of Sir John Bussam. The last-mentioned Robert was the father of William Yarburgh or Yarborough, who married Beatrix, daughter of Sir Geffrey Auke, and had issue by her of Richard Yarborough, who married Cassandra, daughter of Sir Richard Maplethorpe.

Robert Yarburgh or Yarborough, son of Richard and Cassandra, married Isabell, daughter of Sir John Ewerley or Ewerby, and had issue by her of a son named William, who married a daughter of Thomas Angevyle. To this union was born a son named Richard, who married Joane, daughter of John Atwell, and was the father by her of a son named William. This William left issue by his wife Isabell, daughter of Sir John Billing or Bellingham, of a son named Richard, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Moyne. Charles, son of the last union, was first married to Agnes, daughter of Sir John Skipwith, and was the father by her of a son named Richard. By his second wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Martin Newcomyn, he had further issue of Christopher, Edmund, Bryan, Ursula, Margaret, Bridget, Barbara, and Jane.

Richard Yarborough, only son of Charles and Agnes (née Skipwith), was the father by his wife, Margaret Borington or Dorington, of Charles, Anne, and Marie, of whom the first was living at Yarborough, in Lincoln, about the year 1662. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Humphrey Littlebury, and was the father by her of eight children, William, John, Charles, Faith, Anne, George, Francis, and Thomas. The eldest son, William Yerburch, married Elinor, daughter of Thomas Clifford, and had issue by her in the year 1591 or 1592 of a son named Henry. There was also another son, William Yarborough, who settled in Yorkshire and left issue there of a son named Nicholas.

Christopher Yarborough, son of Charles and Elizabeth (née Newcomyn), married the daughter of John Michell, "alias Copeland", and was the father by her of at least three children, John, Anne, and Elizabeth.

Edmund Yerburch or Yarbrough, son of Charles and Elizabeth (née Newcomyn), married Margaret, daughter of Sir Vincent Grantham, and was the father by her of at least two children, Charles and Francis, of whom the former made his home in Nottinghamshire. The younger son, Francis, settled in Northamptonshire and first married Elizabeth, daughter of Robert Farmour, of that place. He had issue by her of a son named Robert. By a second wife, Frances ~~Wray~~, he had further issue of a son named Edmund. This Edmund Yarbrough made his home at Balne Hall, in Yorkshire, and married Sarah, daughter of Thomas Wormeley, of that county. To this union were born Sir Nicholas, Thomas, Edmund, and Frances. Sir Nicholas, eldest of the last-mentioned brothers, married Faith, daughter of John Dawney, and was the father by her of Sir Thomas, Nicholas, Richard, John, Edmund, Christopher, Elizabeth, and Faith Yarbrough, of whom the first was married about the middle of the seventeenth century to Henrietta Maria Blague, who gave him four sons, James, Thomas, Blague, and Richard; Thomas, the second of the sons of Edmund and Sarah (nee Wormeley), married Anne, daughter of Thomas Ellys, but the names of his progeny are not in evidence; and Edmund, the youngest of the sons of Edmund and Sarah (nee Wormeley), married Anne, daughter of Thomas Stanhope, and was the father by her in the year 1661 of a son named Thomas.

Yarb. Possibly the first of the family in America was that Christian "Yarblow" who settled in York County, Va., in 1683, but this is purely conjectural. The first definite records of the name in Virginia were those of John Yarborough, who owned one hundred and fifty acres of land in King William County in 1704; Richard Yarborough, who owned three hundred acres of land in King William County in the same year; and Robert "Yarbborrow", who owned one hundred acres of land in Gloucester County, Va., in 1704.

The records of these early settlers are far from complete, but in 1720 Richard Yarborough or Yarbrough, of King William County, is recorded as owning four hundred acres of land in Spotsylvania County, Va. William and Richard Yarbrough, of King William County, each had four hundred acres of land surveyed in 1720; and in 1722 William W. Yarbrough, of King William County, and his wife Eleanor appear on record. Henry Yarbrough, of the same place, patented land in 1722.

Other early records of the family in Virginia include those of Thomas Yarbrough, who owned land on the Nottoway River in 1727; those of Joshua and Richard Yarbrough, who were listed among the "tithables" of Orange County (formerly Spotsylvania County), Va., in 1734; and those of Grigg Yarborough, who was living in Middlesex County, Va., before 1735. The last, Grigg Yarborough, was the father by his wife Elizabeth of at least two children, Sarah and Griffin.

One Henry Yarborough, of Virginia, was married in the eighteenth century to Martha Robinson and had issue by her of at least one son, also named Henry, who died in 1794.

The younger Henry married Elizabeth Murray and had issue by her of, among other children, a daughter named Nanoy.

Alsop Yarborough, of Hanover County, Va., purchased six hundred acres of land in Spotsylvania County in 1761. He was probably the same Alsop Yarborough who was the father of Sara Pollard, of Hanover County, but this is not certain.

William Yarborough, who was born in 1763 in Virginia, served with the South Carolina forces during the Revolutionary War and subsequently made his home in Fairfield County, S.C. By his wife, Charlotte Burnes, whom he married in 1782, he was the father of at least one son, Henry Yarborough, who married Estha Thompson.

The Arkansas branch of the family in America traces its descent from Marion Yarborough, of Kentucky, who removed to Arkansas shortly after the year 1840. By his wife, Minerva A. Morrow, Marion was the father of John C. Thomas, Alice, Robert, Mollie, Newton Jr., and Susan, several of whom settled in Texas.

Generally serious-minded, quiet, and intelligent, the Yarbroughs and Yarboroughs of America have been prominent in professional pursuits. Many have shown themselves capable in educational, medical, and ministerial endeavors, while others have succeeded as lawyers.

Of the members of the family who served with the Colonial forces during the American Revolution, record has been found concerning Captain Edmund Yarborough, of North Carolina; William Yarborough, of South Carolina; and Lieutenant Charles, Elisha, Joel, John, Sergeant Joseph, and Richard Yarb(o)rough, of Virginia.

Henry, James, William, Joseph, Richard, John, Charles, Edmund, George, Thomas, Francis, Nicholas, Christopher, and Robert are some of the masculine Christian names most frequently used by the family.

Among those of the name who have been prominent in America in comparatively recent years are:

William Henry Yarborough (1840-1913), of North Carolina; soldier and business man.

James Henry Yarborough (b. 1856), of South Carolina, clergyman.

Warren Furman Yarborough (b. 1867), of Mississippi and Alabama, Baptist minister.

Richard Fenner Yarborough (b. 1872), of North Carolina, physician.

James Jasper Yarbrough (b. 1875), of Alabama, educator.

Cecil Sentell Yarbrough (b. 1878), of Alabama, physician, surgeon, and mayor.

Charles Stevens Yarbrough (b. 1882), of Arkansas, oil operator.

William Henry Yarbrough (b. 1885), of Alabama and Tennessee, educator.

Joseph Ussery Yarborough (b. 1886), of Tennessee and Texas, professor of psychology.

John J. Yarbrough (b. 1887), of Arkansas, educator.

Joseph Calvin Yarbrough (b. 1888), of Alabama, lawyer.

Minnie Clare Yarborough (b. 1889), of South Carolina, educator.

George Washington Yarbrough (b. 1892), of Alabama, educator.

Motte Junius Yarbrough (b. 1895), of South Carolina, soldier and lawyer.

Hubert E. Yarboro Jr. (b. 1903), of South Carolina, lawyer.

The coat of arms of the ancient English family of Yarborough, to which the Yarboroughs and Yarbroughs of America are believed to be related, is described in heraldic terms as follows (Burke, Encyclopaedia of Heraldry, 1844):

Arms.--"Per pale, argent and azure, a chevron between three chaplets, all counterchanged."

prey ^{est.} -- "A falcon close or, belled of the last, s on a cock pheasant proper."

1. Eustacious de Yarburgh
- Lord of the manor of Yarburgh or Yarborough, county of Lincoln, AD 1066 (listed in the Domesday book)
2. Robert de Yarburgh (son of Eustacious)
3. Lambert de Yarburgh (son of Robert)
4. Sir John de Yarburgh (son of Lambert)
5. Ralph de Yarburgh (son of John)
- lived during the reign of King Stephen (1135-1154 AD)
6. Robert de Yarburgh (son of Ralph)
7. William de Yarburgh (son of Robert)
8. Richard de Yarburgh (son of Williams)
- did well for himself during the reign of Richard I (1189-1199 AD)
9. Robert de Yarburgh (son of Richard)
10. William de Yarburgh (son of Robert)
11. Richard de Yarburgh (son of William)
12. William de Yarburgh (son of Richard)
13. Richard de Yarburgh (son of William)
14. Charles Yarburgh (son of Richard)
15. Richard Yarburgh (son of Charles)
16. Charles Yarburgh (son of Richard)
- seems to have been in somewhat reduced circumstances, but married an heiress around 1562 and things began to look up!
17. Edmund Yarburgh (son of Charles by his second, even-richer-than-the-first wife) - buried in the cathedral of Lincoln, 1590 AD, with a fancy monument-
18. Francis Yarburgh (second son of Edmund)
- esquire of Northampton, sergeant-at-law to Elizabeth I in the 37th year of her reign, said to be very learned-
19. Edmund Yarburgh (son of Francis and his second wife)
- esquire of Balne Hall in Yorkshire - married two rich wives, 1. Sarah and 2. Thomasine - died May 6, 1631
20. Sir Nicholas Yarburgh (son of Edmund and Thomasine)
- knight of Snaith Hall, Yorkshire - in the commission of array for Charles I (I bet he was a cavalier) - died August 1655

21. Sir Thomas Yarburgh (son of Nicholas)

- knight of Blane Hall and Snaith, aged 27 in 1666, high sheriff for Yorkshire in 1676 and M.P. for Postefract

Here's where it gets interesting- Old Sir Thomas was a busy man and had ten children: James, Thomas, Blague, Richard, Charles, Henrietta-Marie, Margreat, Faith, Rosamund and Alice- All of the girls, except Alice, married very wealthy, important men- Henrietta-Marie was maid-of-honor to both Queen Catherine of Braganza (Charles II's wife) and Queen Mary (of "William and Mary")- James went on to inherit (and, of course, marry a great heiress- These fellas did real well in the heiress line) and the English line of the family then proceeds on down to the present-day James Yarborough, Baron Dexamore of York- Its' son No. 4 that we're interested in : Richard- I would guess that the pickings were pretty slim, so Richard apparantly packed up and headed for the promised land, his church records cease in England at the end of the 1600's then he shows up in the Quit Rent Roll of King Williams County, Va. in 1704, occupying 300 acres- The records are unclear on how many children he had, but one (listed alternately as Edward or Edmund, they seem to have used this name interchangably on the records) looks to be the daddy of our John, ca 1755! So it would go:

22. Richard (fourth son of Sir Thomas)

23. Edmund or Edward (son of Richard)

24. John (ca. 1755 Va. - 1816 SC)

25. Arthur (1799 SC - 1831 AL)

26. John Glazier (1812 SC - 1907 Tx)

27. Jesse C. (1839 AL - 1928 Tx)

WHY YOU HAVE A FAMILY NAME AND WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU

Primitive personal names doubtless originated soon after the invention of spoken language, although the date of their first use is lost in the darkness of ages preceding recorded history. For thousands of years thereafter, first or given names were the only designations that men and women bore; and in the dawn of historic times, when the world was less crowded than it is today and every man knew his neighbor, one title of address was sufficient. Only gradually, with the passing centuries and the increasing complexity of civilized society, did a need arise for more specific designations. While the roots of our system of family names may be traced back to early civilized times, actually the hereditary surname as we know it today dates from a time scarcely earlier than nine hundred years ago.

A surname is a name added to a baptismal or Christian name for the purposes of making it more specific and of indicating family relationship or descent. Classified according to origin, most surnames fall into four general categories: (1) those formed from the given name of the sire; (2) those arising from bodily or personal characteristics; (3) those derived from locality or place of residence; and (4) those derived from occupation. It is easier to understand the story of the development of our institution of surnames if these classifications are borne in mind.

As early as biblical times certain distinguishing appellations were occasionally employed in addition to the given name, as, for instance, Joshua the son of Nun, Simon the son of Jonas, Judas of Galilee, and Simon the Zealot. In ancient Greece daughters were named after their fathers, as Chryseis, the daughter of Chryses; and sons' names were usually an enlarged form of the father's, as Hieronymus, son of Hiero. The Romans, with the rise of their civilization, met the need for hereditary designations by inventing a complex system whereby every patrician traced his descent by taking several names. None of them, however, exactly corresponded to surnames as we know them, for the "clan name", although hereditary, was given also to slaves and other dependents. This system proved to be but a temporary innovation; the overthrow of the Western Empire by barbarian invaders brought about its end and a reversion to the primitive custom of a single name.

The ancient Scandinavians and for the most part the Germans had only individual names, and there were no family names, strictly speaking, among the Celts. But as family and tribal groups grew in size, individual names became inadequate and the need for supplementary appellations began to be felt. Among the first employed were such terms as "the Strong", "the Hardy", "the Stern", "the Dreadful-in-battle"; and the nations of northern Europe soon adopted the practice of adding the father's name to the son's, as Oscar son of Carnuth and Dermid son of Duthno.

True surnames, in the sense of hereditary designations, date in England from about the year 1000. Largely they were introduced from Normandy, although there are records of Saxon surnames prior to the Norman Conquest. Perhaps the oldest known surname in England is that of Hwita Hatte, a keeper of bees, whose daughter was Tate Hatte. During the reign of Edward the Confessor (1042-1066) there were Saxon tenants in Suffolk bearing such names as Suert Magno, Stigand Soror, Siuward Rufus, and Leuric Hobbesune (Hobson); and the Domesday record of 1085-1086, which exhibits some curious combinations of Saxon forenames with Norman family names, shows surnames in still more general use.

By the end of the twelfth century hereditary names had become common in England. But even by 1465 they were not universal. During the reign of Edward V a law was passed to compel certain Irish outlaws to adopt surnames: "They shall take unto them a Surname, either of some Town, or some Colour, as Blacke or Brown, or some Art or Science, as Smyth or Carpenter, or some Office, as Cooke or Butler." And as late as the beginning of the nineteenth century a similar decree compelled Jews in Germany and Austria to add a German surname to the single names which they had previously used.

As stated above, family names may be divided into four general classes according to their origin. One of the largest of these classes is that comprising surnames derived from the given name of the father. Such names were formed by means of an added prefix or suffix denoting either "son of" or a diminutive. English names terminating in son, ing, and kin are of this type, as are also the innumerable names prefixed with the Gaelic Mac, the Norman Fitz, the Welsh ap, and the Irish O'. Thus John's sons became Johnsons; William's sons, Williamsons or Wilsons; Richard's sons, Richardsons or Richardses (the final "s" of "Richards" being a contraction of "son"); Neill's sons, MacNeills; Herbert's sons, FitzHerberts; Thomas's sons, ap Thomases (ap has been dropped from many names of which it was formerly a part); and Reilly's sons, O'Reillys.

Another class of surnames, those arising from some bodily or personal characteristic of their first bearer, apparently grew out of what were in the first instance nicknames. Thus Peter the strong became Peter Strong, Roger of small stature became Roger Little or Roger Small, and black-haired William or blond Alfred became William Black or Alfred White. From among the many names of this type, only a few need be mentioned: Long, Short, Hardy, Wise, Good, Gladman, Lover, and Youngman.

A third class of family names, and perhaps the largest of all, is that comprising local surnames--names derived from and originally designating the place of residence of the bearer. Such names were popular in France at an early date and were introduced into England by the Normans, many of whom were known by the titles of their estates. The surnames adopted by the nobility were mainly of this type, being used with the particles de, de la, or del (meaning "of" or "of the"). The Saxon equivalent was the word atte ("at the"), employed in such names as John atte Brook, Edmund atte Lane, Godwin atte Brigg, and William atte Bourne. A vestige of this usage survives in the names Atwell, Atwood, and Atwater; in other cases the Norman de was substituted; and in still others, such as Wood, Briggs, and Lane, the particle was dropped. The surnames of some of the Pilgrim Fathers illustrate place designations: for instance, Winthrop means "from the friendly village"; Endicott, "an end cottage"; Bradford, "at the broad ford"; and Standish, "a stony park". The suffixes "ford", "ham", "ley", and "ton", denoting locality, are of frequent occurrence in such names as Ashford, Bingham, Burley, and Norton.

While England enjoyed a period of comparative peace under Edward the Confessor, a fourth class of surnames arose--names derived from occupation. The earliest of these seem to have been official names, such as Bishop, Mayor, Fawcett (judge), Alderman, Reeve, Sheriff, Chamberlain, Chancellor, Chaplain, Deacon, Latimer (interpreter, Marshall, Sumner (summoner), and Parker (park-keeper). Trade and craft names, although of the same general type, were of somewhat later origin. Currier was a dresser of skins, Webster a weaver, Wainwright a wagonbuilder, and Baxter a baker. Such names as Smith, Taylor, Barber, Shepherd, Carter, Mason, and Miller are self-explanatory.

Many surnames of today which seem to defy classification or explanation are corruptions of ancient forms which have become disguised almost beyond recognition. Longfellow, for instance, was originally Longueville, Longshanks was Longchamps, Troublefield was Tuberville, Wrinch was Renshaw, Diggles was Douglas, and Snooks was Sevenoaks. Such corruptions of family names, resulting from ignorance of spelling, variations in pronunciation, or merely from the preference of the bearer, tend to baffle both the genealogist and the etymologist. Shakespeare's name is found in some twenty-seven different forms, and the majority of English and Anglo-American surnames have, in their history, appeared in four to a dozen or more variant spellings.

In America a greater variety of family names exists than anywhere else in the world. Surnames of every race and nation are represented. While the greater number are of English, Scotch, Irish, or Welsh origin, brought to this country by scions of families which had borne these names for generations prior to emigration, many others, from central and southern Europe and from the Slavic countries, where the use of surnames is generally a more recently established practice, present considerable difficulty to the student of etymology and family history.

Those Americans who possess old and honored names--who trace the history of their surnames back to sturdy immigrant ancestors, or even beyond, across the seas, and into the dim mists of antiquity--may be rightfully proud of their heritage. While the name, in its origin, may seem ingenious, humble, surprising, or matter-of-fact, its significance today lies not in a literal interpretation of its original meaning but in the many things that have happened to it since it first came into use. In the beginning it was only a word, a convenient label to distinguish one John from his neighbor John who lived across the field. But soon it established itself as a part of the bearer's individuality; and as it passed to his children, his children's children, and their children, it became the symbol not of one man but of a family and all that that family stood for. Handed down from generation to generation, it grew inseparably associated with the achievement, the tradition, and the prestige of the family. Like the coat of arms--that vivid symbolization of the name which warrior ancestors bore in battle--the name itself, borne through every event of a man's life and through the lives of scores of his progenitors, became the badge of family honor--the "good name" to be proud of, to protect, and to fight for if need be. As the worthy deeds of the marching generations have given it dignity and splendor, it has become an institution, a family rallying cry, and the most treasured possession of those who bear it.

Searching for Indexed Terms¹

First, find the name or phrase (search term) in the index. Then, from the menu bar, select “Edit”, and then “Find” or press CTRL+F. A search field will appear in the upper right corner of the page. Enter the search term into this field and press ENTER. If the search term is not found, nothing will happen; otherwise, the search term will be displayed on the first page in which it occurs. Repeated pressing of the ENTER key will high-light other occurrences within the file. Use the left and right arrow buttons to the right of the search field to look ahead or to look backwards for other occurrences of the term in the document

A directory (folder) or even an entire hard drive may also be searched². First, high-light the selected folder or drive and then press SHIFT+CTRL+F to obtain a listing of all the files in which the search term appears. Next, select and open an individual file to find the first occurrence of the search term(s) in the file, as described in the preceding paragraph.
